Constitution Talks

Conciliation Wins Day

By ANTHONY WESTELL, Ottawa Bureau

TORONTO — Premiers Daniel Johnson of Quebec and Ernest Manning of Alberta moved dramatically closer Wednesday, in the Confederation for Tomorrow Conference, as they faced together the task of reforming the Canadian constitution.

Starting poles apart and apparently far from any possible agreement, they ended with hands almost joined on common purpose, if not practice.

It was a great day for the spirit of conciliation.

Nova Scotia's new premier, quiet-spoken, undramatic G. I. Smith, was the man, more than any other who moved the strong Quebecer and the determined Albertan to retreat from apparently inflexible positions to compromise.

TOUGH QUESTION

The 10 provincial representatives began the third day of their conference facing the touchy question: what viable choices does Canada have about its form of federalism?

British Columbia's Attorney-General Robert Bonner opened the session by urging reconsideration of the Fulton-Favreau formula for bringing the constitution to Canada and providing for its amendment.

Bonner argued that the delegation scheme was the key to flexibility in managing the country without the formidable task of making precise amendments in the constitution which all 11 governments could agree.

SHOT DOWN

But Johnson quickly shot down that idea.

Quebec was not interested in a formula for bringing the BNA Act to Canada and amending it, he said.

It wanted a new constitution.

Johnson was philosophical but unmistakably firm. He understood the British mentality which could get along without a precise, written constitution.

But French-speaking and new Canadians insisted on a written document with clearly established principles and protection for minorities which did not depend on the goodwill of the majority.

QUEBEC PLAN

He offered instead Quebec's plan for a new constitution in which all the powers not specifically granted to Ottawa would reside with the provinces.

(Under the BNA Act, residual powers not granted to the provinces reside with the federal government.)

But Johnson was also being pragmatic. He understood, he said, that some provinces might not want, or be able, to exercise all their powers under a new constitution, and they could delegate them to Ottawa.

FRAGMATIC WAY

"I think this is the pragmatic way to adopt a new constitution and to see that all the provinces are not obligated to exercise all powers," he explained.

Johnson appeared to be envisaging an arrangement under which small provinces, or those more disposed to centralized authority, could delegate to Ottawa, while Quebec retained control of its own affairs — and thus developed a special status, not only in social and cultural affairs but also in economic and fiscal areas.

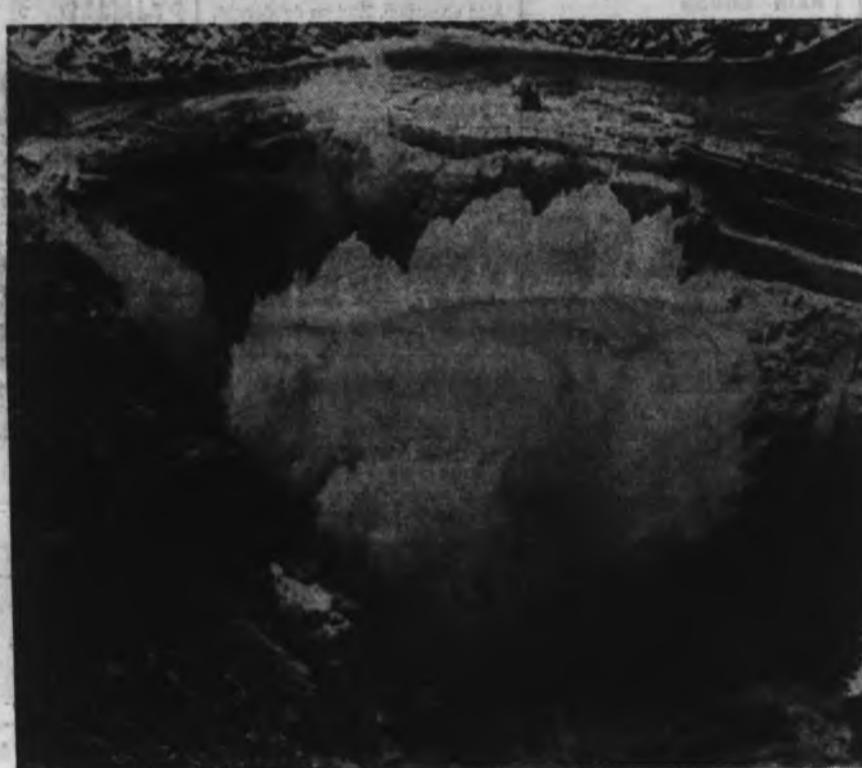

PROMISED HELP

Johnson readily conceded that there may be need for urgent amendments to the present constitution, and he promised Quebec's co-operation.

(Without a formal amending formula, Ottawa and the provinces at present have to agree unanimously when changes are required.)

Quebec Dam Feat World First

World first was scored by Hydro-Quebec engineers who Wednesday used available rock to plug entrance of power dam diversion tunnel on Aux Outardes River. About 450 pounds of explosive dropped 22,000-ton plug, top photo, and resulting spray, below, obscured fact that feat was not complete success. However, eventual saving will be $750,000.

Island's Hydro Load Nears Peak

'Brownout' Possible

B.C. Hydro is gearing for the possibility of a power "brownout" during an expected peak load period on Vancouver Island. Attempts to boost the transmission of power by submarine cable from the Lower Mainland have been delayed by failure of manufacturers to meet specifications.

The Hydro system for the province reached an all-time peak demand of 2,000,000 kilowatts last Monday, said Dr. Shrum. At that time, there was only one spare generating unit in the Vancouver Island system available in case of breakdown. What's worrying Hydro officials, however, is the fact that peak load usually comes in late December. They figure that if an all-time peak demand was reached by the end of November, it is likely to go still higher in the next month.

The submarine cable which links a transformer station near Ladner with one just north of Duncan alongside the Trans-Canada Highway consists of seven separate lines. Six form two three-phase AC current circuits and the seventh, formerly held in reserve, is being converted to DC.

CO-OPERATION

"The lights won't go out in houses unless we make a very foolish mistake. With proper planning, the average home should not be affected."

Dr. Shrum said Hydro already had the promise of full co-operation from Island industries. Plans are being laid for the shutdown of some industries at peak periods, the chairman said.

"Some industries will be advised ahead of time they will be shed from load at peak periods," he said. "This (shutdown) might be passed from one to another."

TWO YEARS

"Unless we plan ahead, and a breakdown occurs at a peak period, the voltage would just go down to the point where motors would burn out, and we're not going to have that."

Dr. Shrum said it would be

Premier Bennett has said the Kelsey Bay-Prince Rupert service will not be renewed until April, after repairs and tests have been completed on the Queen of Prince Rupert, which struck a reef and was badly damaged last summer.

DIRECT SERVICE

Angered by the province's refusal to supply alternative facilities to fill the winter gap, Mr. Hickel applied for direct service right-of-way from the coast guard.

"If Alaska has got so many millions to throw around, perhaps that's what they should do," Mr. Gabardi said, "but I think the U.S. federal government... might not take the same view."

BOTH INTERESTS

Mr. Gabardi said B.C. was trying to provide a link with Alaska ferries through its North Coast service, for the benefit of both American and Canadian interests.

"We've been providing this service at fantastic cost," he added. "Now we are crippled because we haven't got a suitable ship at this time. But you can be sure our vessel will be travelling again just as soon as this can be done safely."

Gagliardi Casts Doubts

YES TO FERRIES SPURS ALASKA

Alaska's Governor Walter Hickel, given a U.S. Coast Guard green light for a direct Alaska-Puget Sound ferry run, announced Wednesday that the new service would begin within 30 days.

B.C.'s Highways Minister Gagliardi immediately commented that he doubted if the service would ever materialize.

The coast guard, earlier Wednesday, approved a request by the governor to designate the waters between Ketchikan and Puget Sound as lakes, bays and sounds. Such a designation permits use of the three ferries now scheduled on the southeast Alaska run to extend service to the U.S. northwest, terminating at Seattle or Bellingham.

Elected by the coast guard decision, Mr. Hickel said the state plans to schedule the all-American ferry service "twice a week until the summer season starts."

Campbell River Sends Protest

CAMPBELL RIVER — Council decided Wednesday to send a letter immediately to Premier Bennett, objecting to the winter discontinuation of the Kelsey Bay-Prince Rupert ferry run.

It also decided to send copies to Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell who represents the riding, and to all members of the cabinet, as well as to the governor of Alaska.

Council intends to solicit the aid of other Vancouver Island communities and Prince Rupert to have the service resumed.

Makarios Gives Sign of Peace

NICOSIA (UPI) — Cyrus Vance, the American mediator on the Cyprus crisis, concluded eight hours of talks with Cypriot President Makarios early today and apparently won his approval for a troop withdrawal agreement to end the threat of war between Greece and Turkey.

Makarios replied "yes" when newsmen asked him after the talks if his discussions with Vance meant peace. Asked if there would be a Turkish invasion of the Mediterranean island, Makarios said, "I don't think so."

IN PRINCIPLE

The statements by the bearded archbishop of the Greek Orthodox Church were taken to indicate he had submitted in principle to agreements already endorsed by Greece and Turkey.

Vance, President Johnson's special peacemaker, left Nicosia immediately after his long meeting with Makarios and said he was conveying the results of the conference to Greek leaders in Athens. Vance said he had no plans to go to Ankara, the capital of Turkey.

Cigarette Solution

'Furtive Thing' Enters School

COQUITLAM (CP) — Furtive cigarette puffing has been stamped out at a high school here. The puffing now is done in the open — with the principal even handing out the ashtrays.

The program at Centennial high school in this Vancouver suburb is part of an experiment by Principal Cam McKenzie.

"The students who smoked were doing so on the parking lot and in the washrooms," said the cigar-smoking principal. "It was a furtive thing that we didn't think should be a part of the school atmosphere."

"We surveyed the students and found that 30 per cent of them were smokers. A questionnaire showed that 75 per cent of the students, including the majority that did not smoke, were agreeable to providing an area where students could smoke in their free time."

Students who smoke must do so in the cafeteria.

Political Feud in Saigon Dims Hope for Stability

SAIGON (UPI) — A new feud between supporters of President Thieu and backers of Vice-President Ky was reported to have erupted Wednesday.

Informed sources said the political infighting involved a report that Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan, chief of the South Vietnamese national police, had offered to resign.

Loan, a powerful force in Saigon, has been Ky's right-hand man.

Ky's position would be considerably weakened if Loan steps down and is replaced by a Thieu man. Thieu is believed to want Loan out of the picture.

There were reports that Loan was unhappy over Thieu's appointment of his political adviser, Nguyen Van Huong, to the important post of secretary-general of the presidency.

Loan could not be reached for comment on the resignation.

Counter-Charge

Cambodia Rejects U.S. Base Claims

SINGAPORE (UPI) — The Cambodian government Wednesday denounced "with indignation" reports of Communist Vietnamese bases and supply lines in Cambodia. At the same time it accused the U.S. government of sending commandos across the border into Cambodia for "sabotage and assassination purposes."

The denial and charges came in an official statement distributed by the Cambodian embassy here.

It coincided with a statement by Gen. William Westmoreland, U.S. commander-in-chief in Vietnam, who said the Viet Cong was operating from Cambodian sanctuaries.

The Cambodian statement charged that for years "the American press has been conducting a systematic campaign against Cambodia, accusing her of violating the obligations of her policy of strict military neutrality in favor of the Vietnamese national resistance."

The royal government avails itself of this opportunity to accuse the American government of having infiltrated into Cambodian territory itself commandos for sabotage and assassination purposes."

The statement did not give any details. But it said Cambodia had statements from captured South Vietnamese members of the U.S. Special Forces to back its charges.

It said the U.S. press campaign had been intensified during the past weeks and "indicated a will to give credence, whatever the source," to the reports that Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces were using Cambodian territory as a sanctuary to attack "the American expeditionary invasion forces" in South Vietnam.

U.S. Base

Jets Rout Cong

SAIGON (AP) — American and South Vietnamese jet aircraft showered bullets and bombs on Viet Cong guerrilla troops Wednesday, driving off the attackers who had overrun part of a South Vietnamese government district headquarters near the Cambodian border.

South Vietnamese spokesman said the assault on Bo Duc was carried out by members of the 27th Viet Cong Regiment. The Viet Cong lost 65 killed in 5½ hours of fighting.

Bo Duc is 80 miles north of Saigon and three miles from the Cambodian frontier.

LONE ACTION

Fifteen of the 200 South Vietnamese defenders were killed and 19 wounded in the only major action reported during a day of scattered encounters on the ground in South Vietnam.

In the air war over North Vietnam, U.S. planes flew 111 missions Tuesday, Navy bombers attacking nearer the heart of Hanoi than they have in some days, hit a rail yard and a rail-highway bridge.

Pilots reported seeing explosions and broken tracks at the rail yard 1.7 miles from the centre of the port and heavy damage to the bridge a mile from the downtown area.

Diplomatic Victory

THREE GREEKS AND TURKS and their Cypriot blood brothers will not be alone in their thankfulness that their governments have come to terms over a long-standing problem which brought these peoples to the brink of war.

While at this time the details of the agreement between the parties to the dispute are lacking, it is sufficient comfort to know that they would be released simultaneously from Athens and Ankara.

It may be premature to call the present understanding as a final solution to the Cyprus issues, but it provides a respite and, above all, an opportunity to negotiate in an atmosphere of relative calm.

No less relieved than the Cypriots themselves are the powers represented in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, to which both Greece and Turkey are signatory. War between them would have destroyed a vital southeast flank position. Moreover, it would have made untenable, at least for its duration, the British position in two strategically important military bases on the island.

It is likely that as one outcome of the detente the United Nations security forces, of which a large proportion are Canadian, will be increased on Cyprus. It is known that this was one of the points for a settlement urged by neutral negotiators.

Great credit is due to the diplomats whose untiring effort in large measure is responsible for an end of what seemed at one point a hopeless impasse.

Mr. Manlio Brozio, secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Mr. Jose Rolz-Bennett, the emissary from the United Nations, and Mr. Cyrus Vance, a special presidential envoy from the United States were indefatigable, shuttling back and forth between the Greek and Turkish capitals, as messengers of peace.

It was Mr. Vance, apparently, whose reassurances prevailed upon Archbishop Makarios in Nicosia to accept the stipulation that the bulk of Greek forces should be withdrawn from Cyprus, as the Turkish government demanded under the threat of invasion. The Cypriot president was reluctant to yield on this issue, fearing, so he said, attack from Turkish Cypriots.

The agreement, whatever its terms, is not likely to reduce immediately the hatred and distrust among the 600,000 islanders, but at least it provides opportunity for control and, in the long run, a possible basis for permanent tranquility.

Civic Parties

IN THE NOMINATIONS filed for the December municipal elections there is no sign of a party approach to local government. Those candidates who are members of the political parties on the provincial and federal scene are not running as such, but as independent individuals. It is worthy of note however, that both in the east and on this coast, there has been an upswing of interest in introducing a party basis in civic politics.

The New Democratic Party has been responsible for this to some extent by running candidates under the party label in the east and deciding to allow constituency associations to do the same in British Columbia, although this year none of them has done so. If and when the NDP achieves some success in this regard, it probably will not be long before the other provincial parties will want to compete.

One question here, though, is whether the policies and philosophies of the established political parties are adaptable to the conduct of local affairs. Another is whether there would be less or more striving for political advantage, to the detriment of the public interest, in councils composed of party groups rather than individuals. Still another is whether provincial-municipal relationships would be sweetened or soured by having Liberal or Conservative or Social Credit or NDP local administrations.

Perhaps thus there is more to be said for a second approach to parties in municipal government which is being mooted both in the big cities of the east and the far west: strictly municipal parties, without provincial-national party connections, but with definite programs and objectives to offer, cohesively, at election time. The proponents of this system hold that the elector would have a chance to vote for courses of action rather than a wide and woolly assortment of individual aims.

To work effectively, this system would need alternative mayor-and-aldermen teams, running in elections in which the whole council was chosen at one time. Even then, the elected mayor conceivably could find the majority of the council in the other camp, unless the electoral law were changed to stipulate that, almost as in parliaments, the winning party would carry its leader into office.

But with refinements, it may be the shape of things to come.

Saving the Farms

THE REQUEST OF the B.C. Federation of Agriculture that the senior governments purchase farmlands on the outskirts of urban areas and lease them back to farmers for agricultural purposes should find at least one advocate in the provincial cabinet.

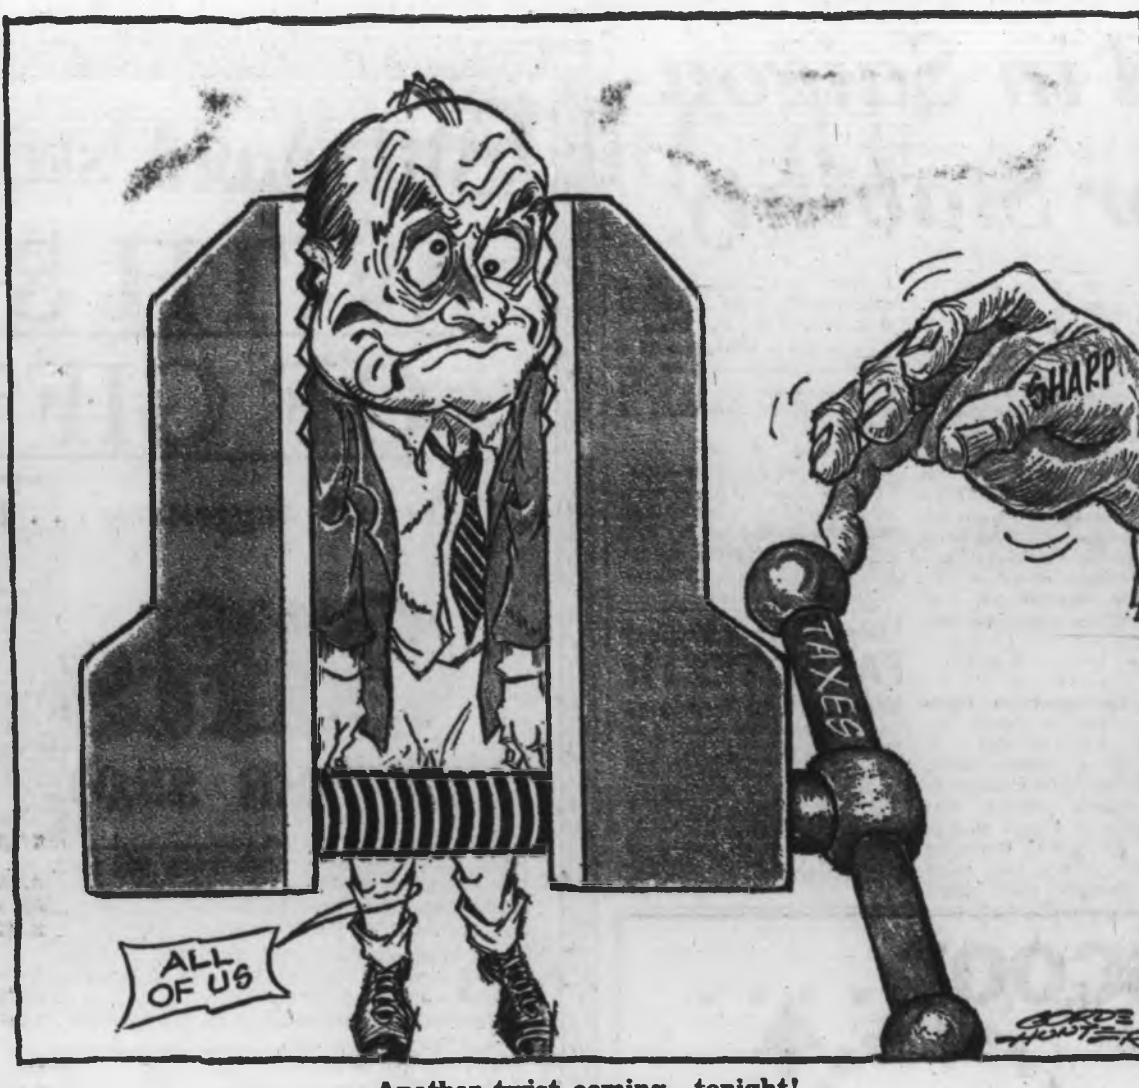

The farmers' reason for the request is that the value of land adjoining built-up areas has risen to levels which make farming uneconomic, and at the same time zoning often prohibits the subdivision of such land for housing, thus preventing the owners from taking the benefit of the increased value.

But Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell a few weeks ago brought back from a visit to Europe another reason for doing the same thing. His idea, it will be recalled, had to do with taking care of future housing needs at prices people will be able to afford. The three levels of government, he suggested, might get together to establish "land banks."

The governments would co-operate, if this suggestion were adopted, to assemble at today's prices large tracts of open land on the fringes of the urban communities, reserving the "banked" property for housing years hence. It could be leased back on long term to farmers while awaiting its ultimate development—presumably at rates which would allow farming to continue to be profitable, which is implicit also in the federation's proposal.

Meantime also the land banks would serve as "green belts" for the cities, and even when finally developed would economically permit the preservation of more open space than if a tide of building had gradually swept over them, under private ownership, during the years.

This is an attractive concept—and by no means for the farmers alone.

Ottawa Offbeat

Glib and Gifted, Premier Daniel Johnson Charms New York and Baffles Ottawa

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

WHAT a smooth piece of political goods, this Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec!

What an absolutely incredible operator, negotiating and manipulating to enjoy the best of both worlds.

Having beyond any shadow of doubt turned his back firmly on separation here at home and still manages on the time-tested basis that gets the squeaking wheel that gets the grease — to squeeze more, both in money and concessions, out of chronically nervous Quebec.

In contrast to the separatist rantings here at home and their ravings in Paris, Premier Johnson sounds like the voice of reason.

As things seem to work out, the madmen of separation do his Ottawa ear-twisting for him, making some of his most outrageous demands sound almost reasonable in comparison.

So here at home, he demands and gets a favored place at the table to appreciate his astonishing skill as a political negotiator — or, as some of his federal critics describe him, a diplomatic shake-down artist — you have to examine, and admire, if grudgingly, his recent astounding performance in New York.

He went down there to convince international financier David Rockefeller, the mighty Chase Manhattan Bank, and the moneymen of Wall Street that there is nothing to all that talk of separation and that their investments are snugly secure in Quebec.

He not only reassured them, he sold them on the proposition that Quebec might be even safer investment harbor for American funds than Canada-English Canada, that is.

He was able to remind the financial-movers-and-shakers of Wall Street that Quebec had been doing many things — that the rest of Canada hasn't — that all calculated to please American investors.

Among them:

• Increasing domestic power rates to raise Hydro-Quebec's already high credit rating with U.S. investors.

• Cutting provincial spending to the bone and raising the Quebec sales tax from 6 to 8 per cent — the Canadian peak to put his province's taxing and spending more in balance.

• Imposing stiff wage guidelines in the face of strikes by the province's public service employees.

• Curbing runaway social security costs by facing down demands of medicare.

This kind of government action invariably spells CONFIDENCE to the financial and investment community.

The war, by which the former American colonies separated themselves from Britain, was virtually ended in October of 1871 with the capitulation of Major-General Charles Cornwallis at Yorktown, Virginia. A definite treaty was concluded Sept. 3, 1783, at Charleston, S.C. — 1799 — The U.S.S.R. attacked Finland.

1936 — The Crystal Palace in London burned.

NATO Nations Soon to Face The Days of Grim Decision

By MARQUIS CHILDS

But Premier Johnson did far better than that.

He managed to put across the idea that Quebec better understood and appreciated the U.S. than does the "rest" of Canada with the latent suspicion of anti-Americanism of the federal government.

But HAS Ottawa actually been suspect of being anti-American? Well, a federal task force under Walter Gordon, a cabinet confidante of Prime Minister Pearson, is "studying" the advisability of restricting American investment in Canada and of "buying the country back" from the U.S.

Then the federal government refuses to consider sharing continental water resources with the Americans.

Additionally, Ottawa unilaterally is determining much wider limits of territorial waters.

And finally, Ottawa has been calling for an end to American bombing in Viet Nam; doing little to discourage anti-American demonstrations, often on a massive scale, on Canadian streets; and generally registering a vote of non-confidence in Washington's foreign policies at the United Nations.

In contrast to this latent anti-Americanism of the federal government, listen to Premier Johnson in New York speak of Quebec's pro-Americanism.

"You and your investments are welcome," he told the Wall Street bankers, "for we have no fear of you, we wish to restrict you."

"We realize that we in Quebec are part of the North American community."

"And realizing this, we appreciate that the United States (in Viet Nam) have assumed a wide-world responsibility in halting the march of communism — for which we thank you!"

Those who were there say that while Premier Johnson didn't mention Ottawa by the way of contrast to Quebec City — he didn't have to — the American bankers got the point.

Johnson of course speaks of old-fashioned, but I am a colonialist."

Their views on women were also oddly inhibited. Most of them slept with Congolese women but were apologetic about it when talking to visitors.

There was no sign of the rumored sex orgies which people across the border had told me to expect.

When I was there some of the mercenaries were even talking about a plan to mount guns on some of the boats on Lake Kivu to create a flotilla of "African Queens."

Despite their general toughness and a clear understanding that they are society's "outsiders," many had distinctly conservative attitudes. One particularly villainous-looking Belgian mercenary with a week-old stubble on his chin hotly condemned youthful trends in Europe.

"I find miniskirts and men with long hair thoroughly degenerate," he said.

Another, a Frenchman who had fought with the OAS in Algeria, described his own philosophy: "It doesn't matter how long you live, it's how intensely you live that really matters. And I know it sounds a swagger."

Towards white women the mercenaries show great respect, almost awe, but it soon fades away into apparent total disinterest. A revealing insight was provided by a woman colleague, Marlon Kaplan, a photographer with whom I had traveled to Bukavu. She noted that after an initial stir caused by her presence — there was only one other European woman there, the wife of one of the mercenaries — she was almost ignored as a woman and simply treated, politely enough, as another visitor from outside.

Africans were almost universally seen as subhuman. Some of the mercenary officers had a good, and friendly, though basically paternal, relationship with their Katangese troops.

But the majority seemed incapable of treating a black man as a human being.

Mercenary Fighter Is Rough and Tough

By JOHN DE ST. JORNE

THEY were a mixed bag, Belgians and Frenchmen pre-Spaniards, Portuguese, Mulattoes from Angola, two Britons and an Israeli from Jerusalem. Their ages spanned a generation. Their backgrounds ranged from the French Foreign Legion to banking and insurance.

A handful perhaps shared the same almost messianic view of the Col. Jean (Black Jack) Schramme himself: To topple President Joseph Mobutu and end what they considered the oppression, corruption and chaos of his regime. But the greatest irony of all was that most of the 150 mercenaries fighting for their lives had not the remotest idea what was going on.

With the exception of Schramme and possibly a few other former Belgian colonials, they had one thing in common. They were true mercenaries, working, as the Oxford Dictionary rather disparagingly puts it, "merely for money." They were men who reckoned fighting a living, the buccaneers of the mid-20th century.

All other motives were secondary, except perhaps for the psychopathic killers, who would probably be there anyway. But the rest needed the spur of big money to lure them into The Congo.

And the money was good: A private on his first tour could earn up to $720 a month, tax free. In addition there was always the prospect of loot and deals on the side, like selling guns to Sudanese rebels, smuggling ivory and gold, and currency rackets. "It's better than working," they say.

The mercenaries' complicated compensation scales are carefully calibrated according to which part of the body is knocked out — from the tip of the little finger to death.

For some of them — a minority — the emotions associated with army recruiting posters were uppermost: A tough, masculine, open-air life; excitement; the fading kudos of being a "professional soldier."

Several of them had been fighting all their lives. They usually started in their national armies, then gravitated to "La

Improvised Weapons

Improvisation was the order of the day. When they attacked

Bukavu, a bulldozer carrying two bazookas was the spearhead vehicle. One patrol, having heard on the Congolese army radio that the road was mined, sent a Volkswagen with two Congolese prisoners out in front as a sort of human mine detector.

When I was there some of the mercenaries were even talking about a plan to mount guns on some of the boats on Lake Kivu to create a flotilla of "African Queens."

Despite their general toughness and a clear understanding that they are society's "outsiders," many had distinctly conservative attitudes. One particularly villainous-looking Belgian mercenary with a week-old stubble on his chin hotly condemned youthful trends in Europe.

"I find miniskirts and men with long hair thoroughly degenerate," he said.

Another, a Frenchman who had fought with the OAS in Algeria, described his own philosophy: "It doesn't matter how long you live, it's how intensely you live that really matters. And I know it sounds a swagger."

But when it came to physical danger the mercenaries were like the rest of us. We were shelled and strafed by the Congolese army several times when I was in Bukavu and we were all pretty scared. Many were past their prime of sustaining the shocks of war and wanted to quit, money or no money.

One seasoned veteran, a Belgian who had spent three years in the Foreign Legion and five in The Congo and had been wounded five times, the worst being a terrible machete slash across his stomach, echoed a feeling that was becoming increasingly general as the days of waiting and uncertainty crawled by.

"I've had enough," he told me. "I'm scared and I'm not afraid to admit it."

There are two basic myths about these mercenaries: One is that they are supermen, the other that they are all in, Zambezi President Kaunda's phrase, "human vermin."

As soldiers they are not better, often a great deal worse, than most of their counterparts in their own national armies. Significantly, out of the total 150 under Schramme, only four actually served in the tough French Foreign Legion, while practically all of the 40 Frenchmen were members of the OAS terrorist movement in Algeria.

Their superhuman image has arisen simply because the quality of the opposition in The Congo has been so poor — either the wild and disorganized "Simba" rebels sometimes only armed with bows and arrows and spears, or the well-equipped but hopelessly poor-spirited Congolese army.

Similarly, most mercenaries fail to make the subhuman grade. The truth is that they are pretty ordinary lot. Only circumstance has rendered them extraordinary.

"Maybe we better start turning off lights in the White House again."

Premiers Delighted with Unique Public Forum

National Awareness May Aid Unity

By BOB TEIMBEE
from Toronto

If Canadians become more aware of the complexities involved in trying to strengthen and maintain national unity, the Confederation of Tomorrow conference this week will have been a success, leaders of provincial groups said Wednesday.

Some were originally pessimistic about the possible benefit of the unique, public forum which brought nine of Canada's 10 provincial leaders to Toronto to discuss the future of Confederation. (Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia is represented by Attorney-General Robert Bonner.)

Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan said:

"I came out of courtesy really. I didn't think anything of lasting value could be

Mann-Sized Quote

Separation of Quebec from Canada would leave the country in tatters. Bloodshed between compatriots can be avoided by intelligent and thoughtful debate, but if this cannot be accomplished then I believe it may be necessary and worthwhile to compel acceptance of a majority view as to the desirability of a united Canada . . . even if this should require enforcement by use of arms.—Maj.-Gen. Churchill Mann, former vice-chief of Canadian Army general staff.

achieved . . . (but) I already have to come to the conclusion that this gathering has been beneficial beyond my wildest expectations."

He added that the subject of a constitution hardly raises an eyebrow in the west.

"People there are more interested in freight rates, education, a better standard of living, things affecting agriculture.

"But the frankness of what has been said here has to be beneficial.

"For instance, if we decide to go ahead with French-language instruction in Saskatchewan — and I'm not saying we are though I believe personally that we should — it will be this conference that has done much to sell it to the people back home who now, quite frankly, are not very enthusiastic about such a change.

"The broad problems of this subject, as outlined by Premier Johnson of Quebec certainly will play a part by showing the people out west just what the over-all situation is in Canada as a whole."

Premier Daniel Johnson himself was enthusiastic

"about the benefits to be derived from the conference. "First, it brings the entire question of Confederation into the open where it can be studied by the youth of Canada who are not satisfied any more to be ruled by the decisions of politicians made in cameras.

"Second, it gives everyone in Canada a chance to see and hear the diversities of the problems involved and should help remove some of their preconceived prejudices.

"We must remember that if the people do not want something it is of little use for politicians to try to bring it about. But no one can be expected to make any decisions in this area without first having a chance to see all the facts.

"And third, the comments on this topic usually are corridor comments interpreted on some high intellectual plane. This conference gives people the chance to put faces with positions. There is a high rating for such forms of forums, such as television programs, as United Nations debates. People want to see situations developing themselves."

He said the conference "is only the start of trying to solve the question of Confederation and our constitution."

"There should be more open conferences so that all facets of the question are unveiled to all of Canada.

"People have to be frank here because they know they are being watched. There is benefit in this."

Premier John Roberts of Ontario, who called the conference, agreed, saying the discussions are as frank as those heard at closed provincial or federal-provincial meetings.

Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta added:

"This is a unique approach that gives people a chance to hear the debate on problems facing us as a country. Like everything else it has good and bad points, but it is important to get the thoughts of all leaders into the open."

Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland agreed. "The dialogue is vital for people to see and hear."

Most premiers felt it was not necessary to try to reach agreement in such open forums. However, Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick suggested "there should be some closed meetings held at the same time so some additional punches can be thrown to clear the air and make it possible to keep debate going and find some ways to approach a solution."

"This conference has a tremendous advantage in getting all Canadians involved in what's going on. The discussions have been frank, but might have been more frank if private sessions were held too."

"You need both types of meetings to make progress."

Bid Vetoed in Advance

President de Gaulle's latest pronouncement on Britain's bid to join the European Common Market is in effect a veto which likely will withstand all the complaints and protests which his market partners can muster.

The door has been shut even though the Common Market council of ministers is still to meet in Brussels in three weeks to give a decision on the British application and Prime Minister Wilson insists the decision must come from all six Common Market members, in accordance with the Treaty of Rome which founded the economic community.

Wilson as well as the European leaders are aware that the pattern of the Common Market is too firmly sealed to be unrolled at this stage and, as much as some European countries may wish to see Britain in, they have too much at stake to begin a serious quarrel with de Gaulle.

Wilson's own position has been weakened by financial and economic problems. All his arguments that Britain has great benefits to offer Europe through advanced computers and other sophisticated machinery tend to be offset by questions about Britain's economic future. Her critical testing time is still to come.

But while de Gaulle has secured an unprecedented ascendancy over Europe, his desire to challenge the United States for the Western leadership appears to be hemmed in by European doubts about some of his more radical goals.

It appears certain that as long as he so chooses, the French leader can bar the European door to Britain. But events have shown there is a good deal of doubt that he can force the U.S. to double the price of gold and devalue the American dollar.

When French policy supported the huge wave of gold marketing that followed devolution of the pound, some of France's own European partners worked behind her back to put the lid on speculation.

By HAROLD MORRISON

This was done in the gold pool from which France withdrew last June but which still contains most of the Common Market membership as well as the U.S. and Britain.

France expressed resentment that this action was taken without consulting her. But despite a continuing temporary rise in gold buying in France, the speculation seems to have subsided. In effect, with the exception of France, the Common Market members threw their support behind the U.S.

This would suggest that the economic unity of the Common Market has not been completely solidified. Wilson may feel there are still breaches to be exploited, especially once de Gaulle, who is 77, leaves the political scene.

JENKINS—In Profile

Roy Jenkins, Britain's new chancellor of the exchequer, is the Labor Party's bon viveur. He likes dinner parties in upper class surroundings attended by intellectuals, socialites and politicians. He attends opera and the theatre often.

He is an economist and a successful author-journalist.

An energetic professional politician, Jenkins exceeded party hopes in his two prior posts — minister of aviation in 1964 and home secretary in 1965.

As aviation minister, he steered his ministry through stormy debates over the government's cutback in the aircraft industry.

As home secretary, considered a political dead end, Jenkins engineered the passage of a justice bill that was one of the most revolutionary measures ever proposed by the Home Office.

Jenkins was born in Aberystwyth, Wales, on Nov.

11, 1920, the only son of a former coal miner, then an official of the South Wales Miners' Federation.

He majored in philosophy, politics, and economics at Balliol College, Oxford, and was graduated with first-class honors in 1941, when he joined the Royal Artillery as a private.

Jenkins lost in his first bid for a parliamentary seat in 1946 but succeeded the second time in 1948. At 27, he became the youngest member of the House of Commons.

His first appointment was as parliamentary private secretary to the secretary of state for Commonwealth relations. Later, he piloted the passage of the Observers Publications Act in 1959.

Meanwhile, he contributed regularly to the weekly Spectator and Sunday Observer and other newspapers. From 1952 to 1955, he published five books and contributed to three others.

Two dealt with problems of the Labor Party and the others were political biographies of 19th century personalities.

On international issues, Jenkins favors Britain's entry into Europe and is pro-NATO.

In 1964, he was reportedly offered the job of editor of The Economist, one of the most prestigious jobs in journalism.

Realizing this would be a turning point in his career, Jenkins conferred with Labor leader Harold Wilson and was promised a ministerial job if Labour won.

Wilson fulfilled his pledge by appointing Jenkins aviation minister after the Oct. 15, 1964, election.

Jenkins, believed to stand to the right of centre in the government, is married and has two sons and one daughter.

Agreement on a common market came last April in Uruguay where the hemisphere's presidents set a target date of 1985. In the seven months since, there has been little progress.

Meanwhile, the Andean group has moved steadily ahead, if essentially on paper.

Representatives of the five nations agreed last month in Lima on a complementation protocol dealing with petrochemicals and a similar accord is expected soon on connection with automotive products.

Under these protocols production of commodities is parcelled out on the basis of national resources and present production. The commodities covered move freely within the group. While the economists and other experts prepare the mass of necessary paper work, key men here and in Bogota are keeping a wary ear cocked to the south toward Peru where events could make it all futile.

It is Peru, however, that attracts the more worried attention. There President Fernando Belaunde Terry's austerity measures have triggered a wave of sometimes violent strikes, giving rise to rumors of a military takeover.

Under Belaunde, who was constitutionally elected, Peru is the geographic keystone of the Andean group. Under a military man or a junta of military men Peru could drift into alignment with the forces that at least in part made the five-nation pact necessary.

Latin American Trade Plan Bedevilled

Politics Bar to Progress

By FRANCIS B. KENT, from Caracas

Political turmoil, the historic roadblock to progress in Latin America, threatens to halt an ambitious multimillion-dollar trade and development scheme that has just begun to move.

At stake is the Andean Development Corp. which was formed last June in Chile linking Chile with Peru, Ecuador, Colombia and Venezuela. It seeks to integrate the economies of the five nations at a faster rate than that contemplated for the much broader Latin American common market.

Domestic political developments in Chile and — more importantly — in Peru have cast genuine doubt on the program's future.

No one is talking in terms of alternatives to the Andean group. But both here and in Bogota, the Colombian capital, concern is developing among businessmen as well as government officials.

The most recent alarming incident occurred in Chile, where President Eduardo Frei faces increasingly firm opposition from the congress and much of the citizenry. A weekend clash in Santiago sparked by Frei's economic politics brought death to half a dozen demonstrators.

It is Peru, however, that attracts the more worried attention. There President Fernando Belaunde Terry's austerity measures have triggered a wave of sometimes violent strikes, giving rise to rumors of a military takeover.

Scotch whisky

A combination of the world's greatest Scotch whiskies and a generation of aches and aggravation.

About a generation ago, our blenders started working on a pretty ambitious theory.

The theory was that if someone could take the key whiskies from the world's greatest Scotches and combine them all in one, someone would have a darn fine Scotch.

The problem was that the key whiskies were scattered from Oban on the West Coast across to Dundee on the East and the whole country above and below.

If that wasn't enough, these whiskies turned out to be as scarce as a clear day in London. (Distillers don't exactly give away whiskies that took generations to perfect.)

All in all, it took 10 years just to assemble these whiskies. And still another 10 to combine them all in one faultless blend.

When you try our Scotch, we think you'll agree it's well worth the price. In fact, after all those years of aches and aggravation, how could you have the heart to drink anything else?

Royal Bank Holds Top Assets Spot

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The Royal Bank of Canada has retained its position as Canada's bank with the greatest amount of assets, and reported another year of gains for the period ended Oct. 31, 1967.

The assets of $7,779,659,283 were just under $300,000,000 more than those of its largest rival. They represented an increase of $750,000,000 on the year, or 10.7 per cent.

INNER RESERVES
Net profit rose to $30,278,555 ($1 cent), an increase of 10.4 per cent from $27,432,288 (82.4 per cent) a year ago. The Royal's accumulated appropriations for losses (the inner reserves) amounted to $105,418,252.

Bank revenue was $418,626,583, up 15 per cent, while expenses rose 15.7 per cent to $349,735,028. Customers' deposits reached a new high at $7,028,815,538 and outstanding loans were $4,402,748,488.

PIPE PERMIT
U.S. approval of the construction of a 32-inch oil pipeline to the Chicago area by Interprovincial Pipe Line Co. is expected this weekend.

Unofficial reports say it is only a construction permit and does not involve oil contracts.

A spokesman for Interprovincial Pipe Line said he had received no official word, but hoped it was true. Interprovincial plans to run a loop line from Superior, Wis., to Chicago at a cost of $75,000,000.

The line would also aim to serve the Toledo and Detroit areas with Canadian oil. It is understood the construction of the line would not authorize increased exports of Canadian oil which would have to be sought through the usual channels.

The prospect of serving the Chicago-Detroit area has acted as a boost to the Canadian oil market in the past two weeks. The shares of oil exploration and producing companies have risen sharply and the Toronto oil index is at an all-time high of about 220.

EXCITEMENT DUES
Gold trading in London Wednesday returned almost to normal and dealers reported no difficulty in placing buying orders. Silver, which has also been strong since devaluation, was also easier.

EXPERTS ON ICE
An Edmonton firm specializing in transportation of all sorts in the Canadian north is becoming a public company and is offering its common shares for public subscription.

Kaps Transport Ltd. claims it will take on any tough industrial moving job in the north and has equipment, including tugs and barges, to back it up.

The shares are being offered at $6 and the company expects to pay a dividend at the rate of 30 cents a year.

Aren't you glad he cared more about coriander than everybody else?

Let's face it.

A coriander doesn't look like much. Even to another coriander.

And maybe that's a big reason why English gin-makers in 1769 neglected this funny looking herb so much.

Except Alexander Gordon, a Highland Scot. He had a hunch. And it paid off. He discovered that by treating the very best coriander just right, it would give gin a wonderful new taste. That gin had never had before.

The rest is history.

200 years later, Gordon's is now the largest selling gin in the world.

And still made exactly to the same secret recipe.

Nobody else knows it. And it's not hard to understand why.

How many people do you know, who really care about what happens to a coriander?

Conciliation Wins Day

are determined not to accept an unwise (amending) mechanism as long as we do not have a new constitution."

And, he added, the new constitution should be binational and bicultural.

As Premier John Roberts made a long statement on approach to constitutional reform, the austere Manning brooded over Johnson's speech.

Then he spoke, as he said, with deep concern:

DEEPLY CONCERN

"If it is the implacable conclusion of the people and government of Quebec that nothing less than complete rewriting of the constitution will suffice to meet their causes and legitimate interests, it really reduces to academic discussion what might be done under the present constitution or revisions to it."

Manning continued sombrely: "We must recognize one cardinal rule — what is held to be desirable must be reconciled with what is attainable in a free and democratic society."

SERIOUS IMPASSE

Forget that rule, warned the Alberta premier, and the country would be at a serious impasse.

Manning clearly thought that Johnson had forgotten the rule. Just as the people of Quebec had rejected the amending formula, so the people of Canada would reject a new constitution, he said. It was unrealistic to think there was sufficient agreement across the country to permit a new constitution.

The country would be divided into warring camps, and if the attempt to write a new constitution was made and failed — well, then the crisis in Canada would be more serious than anything so far.

The conference, at that moment, seemed to be at the impasse which Manning had so much feared.

Quebec firm for a new constitution and nothing less; Alberta sure it was impossible to achieve and an invitation to bitter dispute.

FIRM DIRECTION

Then in stepped Premier Smith, courteous, tactful, but firmly pointing the way out.

He had a great respect for Manning, he said, but surely the Alberta premier was being too pessimistic in assuming it would be impossible to get agreement on a new constitution.

Manning had a record of always being right, said Smith definitely, and chances were he was right this time. But surely the situation should be explored?

WITH SYMPATHY

"The proposal of the prime minister of Quebec may not at once appeal, but it has been put forward in a reasoned way," said Smith. "In a way which convinces me that those who put it forward believe it can be accepted by others if examined with sympathy."

It ought to be examined carefully and in detail at the appropriate time, concluded the Nova Scotia premier.

Manning hastened to clarify his position — a clarification which appeared substantially to move his position.

There was nothing sacred about the BNA Act, he said, and he would support drastic changes if they were desirable and acceptable to the Canadian people.

"I want to see the legitimate interests of Quebec met," said Manning firmly.

His only concern, he toward the middle ground, and then a remarriage with a better contract.

Then he said, that he wanted to scrap the existing constitution and start again from zero. But not at all, he explained, turning to Gallie wit to explain his view in view of the constitution in terms of a marriage contract.

And without, he added with a chuckle, the danger of meeting someone else who would appear preferable to the spouse.

Explained, was with results, and not with the road taken, and he thought Quebec was less likely to get what it wanted by attempting to rewrite the whole constitution.

Ferries

yesterday, in response to questions, that he had nothing to add to his comment made two days earlier on the governor's proposal. At that time the premier said: "No comment, I'm full of goodwill because Christmas is coming."

Mr. Gagliardi said he couldn't help wondering what all the fuss was about from Alaska's point of view.

"There are no tourists to worry about," the minister said. "Alaska isn't cut off because Highway 16 (running nearly 500 miles from Prince George to Prince Rupert, southern terminus of Alaska ferries) is almost all paved and has never been in better shape."

NOT INSTANT

He added: "I doubt if (the proposed new service) will ever materialize. You can't create instant ferries on a run like this."

Mr. Gagliardi was asked whether he agreed with a suggestion by Trade Minister Lofmark that Alaska might be bluffing on the ferry proposal in an attempt to force B.C.'s hand.

"I don't know if (Governor Hochel) is exactly bluffing," he replied. "But if there is such an urgent need for this new ferry service, why have we never heard of it before?"

SIX HOURS

The Queen of Prince Rupert takes 20 hours to complete her 130-mile overnight run between Kelsey Bay and Prince Rupert. It is about a six-hour drive from Victoria to the southern terminus.

The marine highway route, inaugurated in May, 1965, has proved popular with those who don't like to make the long two-day highway trip via Prince George.

No figures have been officially released on the U.S.-Canadian proportions of travel on the Queen of Prince Rupert. But it is likely that Americans far outnumbered Canadians.

OFFICIALS CONFIDENT

B.C. ferry officials, while officially silent, are confident that there would be enough traffic to justify continuation of the Prince Rupert service even if the U.S. ferry route was established.

They point out an American all-sea route would probably be eight to 10 hours slower and lack both the variety of a drive along Vancouver Island and the comparative luxurious accommodations on board the Queen of Prince Rupert.

Snuff Box Sold For $53,940

LONDON (Reuters)—An 18th century gold and mother-of-pearl snuff box has sold for a world record £21,000 ($53,940) to an unnamed European dealer. The box, made by Jean Fremin of Paris in 1756 and decorated with Chinese subjects, fetched top price in sales of antiques and ancient documents at Sotheby's.

The Incredible Hippie Murder Case

Here is probably the most nightmarish article The Reader's Digest has ever published. It is the true story of how, in just a matter of weeks, a nice 18-year-old girl from a fine family and with extraordinary advantages, became addicted to a hippie life — to psychedelic drugs — and ended up raped and murdered, her head shattered by bricks and her body stretched out on a grimy boiler room floor. This is "must" reading for both parents and youth in a day when family ties are threatened and teen-agers are tempted by a world of fantasy in which they may too easily lose their way. Be sure to read this remarkable article in December Reader's Digest. On sale now.

Mercury Cougar for '68 Pound for pound and dollar for dollar the best equipped luxury sports car in North America

Mercury Cougar, winner of Motor Trend Magazine's Car of the Year award, is looking for new worlds to conquer. And for '68 it has the features to do it.

Hot new 302 cu. in. V-8 engine — bigger than ever! Bucket seats in glove-soft vinyl which is deep foam-padded to body contours. Full carpeting. Hidden headlights. Sequential turn signals. New E70 x 14 wide oval tires. And a trunk big enough to

McNamara Joining World Bank Next Year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Defense Secretary McNamara announced Wednesday night he would assume the presidency of the World Bank sometime next year. President Johnson, in a separate statement, said the shift would not affect Vietnam war policy.

McNamara confirmed his decision to leave the Pentagon after nearly seven years of punishing labors in a statement issued about an hour after the World Bank's executive directors agreed unanimously to offer him the job.

Johnson and McNamara said no precise date had been set for the change, and the president gave no indication who he would name as McNamara's successor, or when.

Johnson said he had asked McNamara to stay on long enough into the next year to complete work on the new federal budget proposals for the fiscal year starting next July 1. The budget was expected to go to Congress late this year — in late January or early February.

There was no indication from either man whether McNamara might leave soon after the Pentagon budget request is completed, presumably early in the year, but the implication was he would be out well before the November presidential election.

"The course of our participation in the war in Vietnam is firmly set; major defense policies are clearly defined; and it will be possible for Secretary McNamara's successor to continue his able and effective administration of the defense establishment and our program without loss of momentum or effectiveness."

Both men said McNamara was approached about the World Bank position by the bank's present president, George Woods, whose five-year term expires Dec. 31.

Johnson said McNamara told him he was interested in the job "as an opportunity for continued service."

Neither man referred to speculation which the White House had sought to dampen earlier in the day — that McNamara was leaving the Pentagon because of a serious conflict with Johnson and the joint chiefs of staff over military policy in Vietnam.

McNamara, instead, said he had worked with Johnson "in complete harmony and with the highest regard." And in his statement, the president said, "I do not minimize the loss to the government and to me personally that will result from Secretary McNamara's departure . . ."

The Pentagon statement came less than an hour after the executive directors of the 107-nation World Bank announced they had unanimously approved McNamara's nomination.

McNamara gave this account of events leading up to his nomination:

"On April 18, he said, Woods told me that he wished to recommend me to the executive directors as his successor."

"He asked whether I would be interested. I replied that I had not thought of the possibility before he mentioned it to me, but that I was interested in the economic development of the less developed countries and believed that the work of the bank in this respect was vital to the stability of the relations among all nations.

McNamara said Woods replied it was not necessary to make any decision then — that although his own term with the bank was scheduled to end Dec. 31, 1967, he was considering staying on for as long as necessary."

"I reported this conversation to the president," McNamara said, "and told him of my interest in the post. I reiterated that I would serve as secretary of defense as long as it was necessary."

"About mid-October, McNamara told him nominations to succeed Woods would have to be made soon," and he asked me if I was still interested in serving as head of the bank."

"I answered in the affirmative repeating, however, that I would not leave the post of secretary of defense until he felt he could release me.

"The president told me, as he has said before, that he believed I deserved whatever I wanted in out of government and he would do whatever he could to help me get it," McNamara continued. "We discussed the state of the defense program and the names of potential successors.

"I have greatly valued the regard."

Johnson May Referee Rusk-Committee Feud

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson may be asked to mediate a continuing dispute between State Secretary Rusk and the Senate foreign relations committee regarding information on the Vietnam war.

Rusk has repeatedly rejected invitations to appear before it and publicly answer questions, saying a more candid and fruitful exchange of views can be had in private session.

Minimum Eight Pieces in Music Festival

Something New May Horn In

The Greater Victoria Music Festival next spring could be a swinger. For the first time, the festival has set aside a class for popular bands. However, the syllabus specifies that each entry should not have fewer than eight musicians. There are about 20 active

"pop" bands in Victoria, but most of them have only four or five members.

The syllabus for the festival, which runs from April 22 to May 3, also announces a new vocal class — that of musical comedy. Competition is offered for both solo efforts and vocal ensembles.

Festival organizers also point out that there is a vocal class for solo and accompaniment, appearing in the section for the 17-to-21 age bracket, and in which both performers are adjudicated.

In addition, there are special sections for boys' vocal solos, in line with suggestions made by vocal adjudicator Nigel Cox earlier this year.

In the string section, which includes violin, viola, cello and string bass, there are distinct classes for competitors with less than two or less than four years of study.

The classical guitar is back. There was a class for it in 1967, but there were no entries.

In all, the syllabus offers 314 classes plus 17 speech arts classes. The vocal department leads the way with 94 classes, the guitar has only one and there are five for performers on the recorder.

Welfare Centre Branching Out

By JOHN MATTERS

The Family and Children's Service has set up its first satellite social welfare centre, which officials hope will be the prototype for three more.

The community welfare office at Fernwood and Gladstones is the first of what executive director Gordon Wright hopes will be a string of such centres in the Greater Victoria area.

"We are quite pleased and fascinated by the results we are getting," Mr. Wright explained Wednesday.

A social work team consisting of a supervisor, a counsellor, two social workers, an aide and a receptionist is concentrating its efforts in a district with many low-income families.

WELFARE CENTRE

The object is to decentralize the services which before were mainly available at the welfare centre, Spencerhouse, at 1351 Cook.

Early next year, Mr. Wright hopes to have similar offices in the Gorge-Tillicum district and another in the Fernwood-Gladstone area.

Mr. Wright also thinks there is a need for such offices in the James Bay district and another in Esquimalt, but the populations aren't large enough to warrant a full team.

YOUTH TEAM

He said the Family and Children's Service is planning a submission to the provincial government urging financial support of a fourth team which would deal only with Indians.

The team approach to social problems has had its effectiveness proven, he said.

THE DAILY BRITISH COLONIST.

November 30, 1867

Both parties in Canada are moving to have the election laws so changed as to have one day's polling. Experience proves that the present arrangement encourages bribery. It was proposed not long since to change the established custom in America and extend the time to two or more days, but this movement in Canada would of itself prove its inexpediency.

The attention of the civic authorities is called to the shocking state of Douglas Street, between Johnson Street and St. John's Church. The thoroughfare is hardly passable for vehicles. The sidewalk in front of the Post Office also needs repairing; and a legal gentleman who has offices on Bastion Street, being minus a woodhouse, has hit upon the happy expedient of piling his firewood on the sidewalk. What are the city fathers about?

Education Debate

Students and politicians today will debate education at the University of Victoria.

A panel will speak at a public meeting at 12:30 p.m. in the Student Union Building. Resources Minister Williston will be among the speakers. Others will be David Stupich, NDP MLA for Nanaimo; Peter Burn, chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board; a member of the university's education faculty; David McLean, president of the student council.

Ten Terrible Days

For better than 10 months, the city of Victoria's fatal accident toll stood at one. In 10 terrible days it climbed to five, with four of the victims pedestrians.

City police cannot explain this sudden carnage. In the accidents which claimed the lives of three pedestrians in 10 days, liquor was not a factor.

City police have attended 133 accidents so far this month. That's an increase of 78 on last November. Thirty-three of these produced injuries, with 77 people going to hospital—and 14 of them police pedestrians.

A coroner's inquest into the traffic death of Lenore Harkin, 6, of 3128 Glasgow, will be held in McCall's Chapel at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

The girl was struck by a car at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday while crossing Douglas Street at Speed Avenue.

Insp. Berry said traffic department was contemplating laying charges against one pedestrian, who apparently crossed against a red light and was knocked down by a car.

"In many cases," the inspector said, "the pedestrians are as much to blame, if not more, as the motorist."

The motorist will be exposed Friday night to the first roadblock since April. Police assisted by auxiliary members will man the blocks on roads in various parts of the city, looking for the drinking driver and junk car.

Also, he said, they should use marked crosswalks.

MP Urges More Work

Mississippi Shipyards Recruiting

By GEORGE INGLIS

The prospect of Victoria shipyard workers emigrating to the U.S. increased Wednesday as a Mississippi shipyard sent out a call for shipfitters and pipefitters, a union source said.

And Saanich MP George Chatterton said the answer to Victoria's shipbuilding problem could be, in part, the obtaining for this area of some U.S. contracts.

An official from a shipyard in Pascagoula, Miss., which has turned out oil-drilling rigs similar to the one built by Victoria Machinery Depot, phoned Victoria seeking 50 to 75 shipfitters in a hurry, "with no red tape to go through," and an unspecified number of pipefitters.

COMING WEEK WEEK

The man said living is pleasant in the city of 35,000 on the Gulf of Mexico between Biloxi and Mobile Bay, and the temperature Wednesday was 72 above. When he heard there were men out of work here, he said he would send a representative to Victoria next week to recruit.

The shipyard official said he had planned to seek tradesmen in Scotland until he heard of VMD's withdrawal from shipbuilding.

He said his representative would come prepared to "hire on the spot."

EYEWASH

Mr. Chatterton, Conservative member for Esquimalt-Saanich, termed recent talk of the need for a government takeover of the shipyards, "eyewash."

"A government takeover will not create more shipbuilding or employment. What we need is more shipbuilding activity."

Some of this activity, he suggested, might come from the "cost-sharing program with the United States through which there are possibilities of getting some U.S. contracts."

JOSBS IN SEATTLE

"Right now there are two military vessels in Seattle that our shipyards could handle. With active pursuit by our government, it might be possible to bring these ships to B.C. for completion."

He said he had every sympathy with the people of Cape Breton Island in the Doece closure threat, but added, "I have had a lot of publicity, but I consider the situation with our shipyards in Greater Victoria to be comparatively a very serious problem for citizens of this area."

The announcement was made Tuesday by Peter Bunn, chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board. He said Mr. Trim was the unanimous choice of trustees who considered six finalists from 17 applicants.

Trim is the new name chosen for the $1,084,328 structure at the head of Portage Inlet. It was provisionally named Christie Point school.

Mr. Trim, of 309 Banks Avenue in Parksville, has been principal of Parksville Junior High School for the past 11 years.

The former reeve of Saanich said he laid "the responsibility for the situation right on the doorstep of the present government. I think the government is answerable to the people of Greater Victoria for the dismal situation which exists in our important and essential West Coast industry."

TWO INDUSTRY

"The industry is definitely in the doldrums," he said. "Five years ago it employed 2,700 people. Now it is down to fewer than 700. At Burward Dry Dock fewer than 500 are employed."

"We are a two-ocean country," he said. "Previous governments have acknowledged this, and the fact that it is essential in the interests of Canada to keep the shipbuilding capacity on both coasts in viable condition. Part of the reason was national security."

"That argument is even more dominant today, because it is obvious that trade with the Far East for the whole of Canada is growing in importance and will continue to do so in the years to come."

30 at UVic Picket Recruiters

Dow Chemical Company personnel recruited were picked for three hours Wednesday by about 30 University of Victoria students at the campus student placement office.

The students, like others across Canada, have singled out Dow recruiters because the U.S. parent company makes napalm jellied gasoline for use in the Vietnam war.

Despite the demonstration, Dow representatives James Hope and W. McCagherty interviewed five UVic fourth-year chemistry majors.

They said afterward that Dow of Canada does not make napalm.

The demonstrators carried pictures of Vietnamese children said to be burned by napalm.

Schools for Community Use

'Open Door' Cheered

By BILL STAVDAL

Recreation spokesmen are welcoming the Greater Victoria School Board's new low-rent "open door" policy for community use of the district's schools.

For meetings connected with education, schools will be rent-free when the new policy goes into effect Jan. 1.

For many other groups, especially athletic and recreation organizations, the rent will be cut by 50 per cent.

Peter Bunn, chairman of the school board, said Wednesday

PTA meetings, teachers'

Organized athletic groups and recreation councils will pay $1 an hour Monday through Friday for elementary gymnasiums, and $3 an hour on Saturday. High school gymnasiums will cost $2 an hour during the week and $6 on Saturday.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

FATHER DAVID BAUER will speak at a dinner to be held by the Saanich Minor Hockey Association at 6:30 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 22, just prior to the start of the Memorial Arena game between the Winnipeg-based (No. 1) Canadian national team and Moscow Selects. Be there if at all possible because Father Bauer is an outstanding after-dinner speaker... with Jack Morgan still recuperating from illness, John Bate, assistant-manager of Memorial Arena, has been kept so busy that he hasn't had much time to think. It's just as well because there is still four months left to that March 31 date John is dreading... Jack, incidentally, is out of hospital but under orders to take things easy for a while... Al Miller, the goalkeeping nomad, is back with Quebec Aces in the American Hockey League. Miller has played professionally for 14 different clubs and probably holds a record in that his career has embraced the seven professional leagues which have been in operation — the National, American, Western, Quebec, United States, Central and Eastern. And he even played in the Pacific Coast league before it changed its name to Western... flanker Hugh Campbell is interested in a coaching job at Washington State University, his old school, and the chances are good he won't be back with Saskatchewan Roughriders next season. However, if this proves out, the Riders have a fine replacement in Gordie Barwell, who can rank right up there with Terry Evansen and Ken Nielsen as a pass-catcher... other football rumors have it that defensive-end Garner Ekstrand of the Riders is playing out his option and, with Nielsen, is interested in playing with the B.C. Lions... it may be a bit early to be making baseball predictions but Minnesota Twins could have won the American League pennant Tuesday with the trade that brought them catcher John Roseboro and relief-pitchers Ron Perronek and Bob Miller...

ART HARVEY of Don Mills, Ont., father of the well-known Gall — who is now Mrs. Jim Moore of New Westminster, is hoping to play in The Daily Colonist's annual Boxing Day golf tournament... pleasant reading was the recent news that ex-Victorian Dick Muus had been appointed pro at Vancouver's Point Grey Golf Club. Dick is one of the finer young men in the business and anything that he gets out of golf will always be merited... Brian MacKenzie, the former Oak Bay high school basketball star who is now a star at Simon Fraser University, has been dubbed "Mr. Magoo" by coach Jack Fraser while he is getting used to contact lenses. "He'll put the ball through the hoop for you," Fraser says, "but he has to ask what the score is because he can't see as far as the scoreboard yet"... a big start by veteran-leftwinger John Eskey is surely one of the main reasons for the success of Boston Bruins. It took Bucky 38 games to get eight goals last season, this season he scored 13 times in his first 20 games... Wayne Caikman, highly-regarded by the Bruins, found a new way to interrupt a promising hockey career recently. The youngster, playing with Oklahoma Blazers in the Central league, tried to jump from one balcony to another at the club hotel. He missed, fell 12 feet to the sidewalk, fractured his jaw, had two teeth knocked out and needed 12 stitches to close facial cuts... just uncovered in the litter on my desk was a note to the effect that former-Victorian Peter Coleman was a big winner at the Pan-American Paraplegic Games last summer. He won two gold medals and three silver medals in swimming and a bronze medal in table tennis doubles... incidentally, the lady who brought the information also left her sun-glasses and can get them back by mailing another call...

PROVIDENCE REDS of the American Hockey League must have set an all-time hockey record for futility earlier this month when they had their winless streak away from home extended to 59 games. I'm not certain whether they have added to it since but between Jan. 29, 1966 and Nov. 19, 1967 the Reds lost 53 and tied six games on the road... it is a bit difficult to figure how Harry Forbes could be selected as the winner of the Leo Nicholson Trophy as the most valuable goalkeeper in the Inter-City Lacrosse League and still fail to win selection to the all-star team. Anyway, congratulations to Forbes, Shamrock-coach Dave Unwin and Ranjit Dhillon for their award-winning. And to Bill Munro, who was named to the second all-star team after what was probably his best season... Time dims memory but the death of Native Dancer recently recalled just how great a thoroughbred the "Grey Ghost" had been. Beaten only once, in the 1953 Kentucky Derby, Native Dancer never went to the post at odds of better than 9-10 in his 21 races. He was a standout as a sire as well. His 23 offspring have already won more than $4,000,000 in purse money and nine of them sold at an average price of $51,000 at the Saratoga thoroughbred sale this year... Hartland Globe Trotters make their annual Victoria appearance in March this time around... another Memorial Arena event not to be missed, if Jack Morgan is successful in his efforts to book it, will be the Danish gymnastic team... Joe Kapp is coming along as quarterback of the Minnesota Vikings. Latest available National Football League statistics show that the ex-B.C. Lion had completed 60 of 122 passes for 974 yards and four touchdowns. And he added to that last Sunday by throwing for two touchdowns. He also went over himself — from 11 yards out yet... Jack Gallerier must be the most valuable parking lot attendant in the business. Chicago White Sox were so pleased with the way he looked after their cars in the Comiskey Park lot that they voted him a $500 cut of their world series share. Members of the fourth-place Sox who earned a full share received $428 each.

Roughies Arrive For Grey Cup

Ottawa (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders arrived by air Wednesday and quickly started serious preparation for defense of their Grey Cup title against Hamilton Tiger-Cats Saturday.

One player with the Western Football Conference champions had already called Grey Cup week "the longest of my life" and assistant coach Jim Duncan promised on arrival: "And it'll be the busiest."

FANT PRACTICE

The club worked out at Ottawa Rough Riders' practice field and Duncan and head coach Eagle Keys scheduled the first of many film sessions to follow.

"Now we'll really get down to things," said Duncan. "We didn't have much time at home to look at the films... We'll get down to breaking Hamilton down and getting their patterns."

Roughriders reported players healthy and Ed Buchanan's knee was reported healing well. This made it unlikely that guard Al Benick, off the injured list today, would play.

BENICK LIKELY OUT

Keys said that about the only way the four-time all-star could play was if Buchanan had to miss action. Benick is recovering from a knee injury.

Roughriders came by chartered aircraft from Regina and what little football talk there was on the flight contained frequent mention of Ticats powerful defense.

"We've only had a short look at them on film," said Henry Dorsch, a two-way back. "Their defense looked outstanding to me but I think we can throw enough of a diversified attack at them."

NOT SO EASY

Agreed Benedick: "I understand they're saying that George Reed is 60 per cent of our game and they can stop him. Well, I can't say I think they'll find it that easy."

"Even if they manage to hold Reed we have plenty of other people we can go to. We've got people who can run, like Buchanan, and several good receivers, like Gord Barwell and Hugh Campbell."

Reed, 208-pound fullback who led Riders' ground game in the WFC finals against Calgary Stampeders, also praised Hamilton's defense, but added: "They can't stop everybody all the time."

Roughriders reported players healthy and Ed Buchanan's knee was reported healing well. This made it unlikely that guard Al Benick, off the injured list today, would play.

Aparicio Back With Chicago

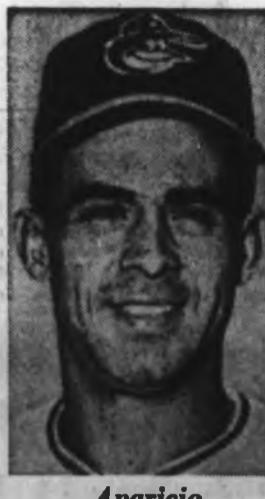

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Veteran right-handed hitting outfielder Luis Aparicio wound up with Chicago White Sox again Wednesday in a six-player baseball deal that sent pitcher Bruce Howard and infielder Don Buford to Baltimore Orioles.

SWAP PITCHERS

Cleveland pulled another deal Wednesday by sending Chuck Hinton to California Angels for Jose Cardenal in a swap of right-handed hitting outfielders. Season with the White Sox and was farmed out to the Indianapolis farm where he had a 3-0 record over a brief stretch. Buford, used at both second and third with the Sox, hit .241. He is 24. Nelson, 23, had a 3-3 record at Indianapolis and was 0-1 at Chicago.

Aparicio dropped off 43 points in hitting from his form in Baltimore's pennant-winning year of 1966. He batted only .233 last season. The speedy little man from Maracaibo, Venezuela, who returns to the White Sox for whom he played from 1956 through 1962.

Snyder, 33, dropped from .306 in 1965 to .235 last season as a part-timer. Matias, who has .279 at Elmira, N.Y., in the Eastern League, will go to the White Sox Hawaii farm in the Pacific Coast League.

Howard, 24, was only 3-10 last

Football Injuries Spark Probe Idea

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — National Football League owners are being urged to dip in their pockets and finance an athletic research institute to study the cause and possible solution of injuries which are crippling many of the game's top stars.

G. E. (Moose) Detty, trainer, and Dr. James E. Nixon, team physician, both of Philadelphia Eagles, have submitted a plan they are prepared to implement if they can get the go-ahead from the owners.

The idea of such an institute came to light this week in a discussion with Detty about the many injuries, especially to knees and the Achilles tendon, which have crippled several players this season.

There have been 18 players sidelined for the season at various stages because of knee injuries, and at least four others are victims of torn Achilles tendons. Broken arms, legs, elbows, and back injuries are others that have forced out valuable properties all over the league.

"Take the Achilles tendon injury for example," said Detty.

"Maybe it has something to do with the shoes they're wearing, maybe it's diet. The institute could look into this.

It would be a cheap investment considering the possible result.

"Also, maybe the league ought to take a look at such manoeuvres as the crackback block where players are subject to sharp angle and blind side blocks."

Detty said the cleats may have something to do with it. "maybe they are too long, or allow the foot to become embedded too firmly in the turf. Maybe we need a modified rubber cleat or perhaps a soccer-type cleat, or no cleat at all."

Liverpool Soccer Fans To Have Police Escort

LONDON (CP) — Liverpool soccer fans will be watched by police all the way when they travel down to London to see their team play Fulham next Saturday.

Police will go aboard trains taking fans to the capital. More police with dogs will be waiting on the arrival platform.

The idea is to prevent repetition of an incident last Saturday in which Manchester United fans did an estimated $2,400 damage to one train when they travelled to London to watch their team play Chelsea.

Clair

Another Storm For Clair

OTTAWA (CP) — Coach Frank Clair is reported to be in hot water again with Ottawa Rough Riders but unless there is a sudden change in thinking by the team directors his job should be safe for the present.

Clair has weathered several storms in his 12-year career as head coach of the Ottawa team, especially in recent years when the Riders have been eliminated from Grey Cup competition by Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Eastern Football Conference finals.

But last year, when the Riders broke a string of four consecutive second-place finishes behind the Ticats, and playoff losses to the Hamilton team, Clair was given a five-year contract calling for an estimated $25,000 a year. With four years to go in the contract, it would cost the team about $100,000 to fire Clair.

There have been several reports of dissension on the team and general manager Red O'Quinn, one of the 12 team owners, said this week they would be dealt with "in due course."

O'Quinn added that the team has all winter to sort out any problems and any decisions probably would not be made for some time.

Two years ago, when Ottawa lost to Hamilton for the fourth straight year, there were reports that Clair was about to be fired and replaced by Bill Smyth, the Riders' defensive coach who moved there 12 years ago with Clair. Smyth died last fall just before the EFC playoffs.

But the reports disappeared last year when Ottawa finally beat the Ticats, winning the two-game, total point series 72-17.

The Riders' fortunes changed this year. They finished second in the season standings and lost the playoff round by a 37-3 score.

Riders have been picked by most observers to win the EFC title and return to the Grey Cup this year, with the Grey Cup game in Ottawa Dec. 2.

One director said that any possible change in coaching staff would not be made unless there was a concrete indication that the team was facing a serious loss of income.

Vernon Gets New Contract

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast Baseball league announced Tuesday that James Burton (Mickey) Vernon will return as manager of the club for the 1968 season.

Last year the 49-year-old former American League batting champion led the Mounties to a third place finish in the western division of the PCL.

Nancy Can't Accept Scholarship

NELSON (CP) — Canadian skiing star Nancy Greene, a student at Notre Dame University here, says acceptance of a special athletic scholarship from the B.C. government last spring would have disqualified her from competing in the 1968 Winter Olympics.

Miss Greene said in an interview the scholarship, given to her after she won the women's world skiing championship, is really in a tangle.

She said she hasn't seen any of the $5,000.

The Roseland skier said she learned she wouldn't be allowed to accept the scholarship after checking with the International Olympic Association.

Miss Greene said the whole thing hinges on the fact that the scholarship was awarded for athletic rather than academic reasons.

Coach John Platt of the Canadian ski team said the team has been trying for some time to get the government to channel the $5,000 through the Canadian Amateur Ski Association, which would in turn use the money to help Miss Greene with her education.

Film Screen Comes Alive In Ice Capades Feature

Film-goers would get a shock if the stars jumped right out of the screen onto the stage, but that's just what will happen when Ice Capades opens Wednesday at Memorial Arena.

The skaters chart their cues backstage like a Cape Kennedy countdown before they burst through the screen onto the arena ice. The screen is being used for the first time in an ice show.

at the precise moment to coincide with the film action. Ice Capades president George Eby first saw the screen in action at a Las Vegas hotel and began negotiations for its adaptation to his show immediately.

Technicians at MGM Studios came up with the answer to that problem by inventing a projector that could run backward as well as forward.

To meet the problems of varying arena sizes, a special screen was made that could stand rolling, folding and 700 to 800 pounds of pull.

Ice Capades fans will see the screen in action during a special production sequence of the Broadway musical, High Button Shoes.

Despite the technical skills that have gone into the magic screen, the final touch requires the human element. Perfect timing by each performer is a necessity. This is accomplished by each performer using the musical score as a mental countdown.

At the precise moment they burst through the screen and glide right onto the ice. They will be located the projector near centre ice and high enough up near the roof so as not to impede the view of the audience.

Reds Claim 'Debauch' By Attaches

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia alleged Wednesday that a British and American military attache involved in an incident Nov. 17 in a Kishinev hotel, in Soviet Moldavia, were off a "drunken debauch."

The Izvestia charge came two days after Britain and the United States announced they had protested to the Soviet government that the two attaches were manhandled in their hotel room by five or six unidentified men.

The two attaches — Brig. C. A. des N. Harper and Col. William J. Spahr — were on an officially-approved tour of Soviet Moldavia when the incidents took place.

The British and U.S. protests said the two attaches fell ill after sampling drinks at a wine-making farm and were admitted later. The protests said the attaches had their clothes torn and money belts, in which they carried personal documents, removed.

Izvestia termed them "drunken debauchers who had also forgotten that they were not at home but in another country."

WINE SUSPECT

The British and U.S. statements on the affair said medical examination of the two men — who returned to Moscow immediately after the incident — indicated the wine they drank at the farm might have been tampered with.

Izvestia said the men who went into the attaches' room were a doctor, a militiaman and hotel employees summoned by other guests who complained of noise.

The newspaper claimed furniture in the room was broken and a curtain torn by the two attaches before anyone arrived.

BODY BRUISES

The doctor and the hotel staff put the two to bed, Izvestia said. Bruises on their bodies were caused when they fell over themselves, it added.

Izvestia alleged that Harper told hotel officials who asked him to sign for the damage that "we have bemuddled our names with this act."

Plane Order

Deal Drop Angers France

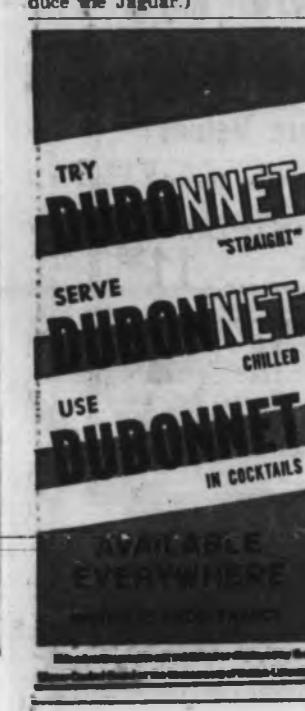

PARIS (UPI) — French partisans of European co-operation are furious over reports West Germany had abandoned an order for Franco-British military planes in favor of American aircraft.

Gaullist sources said that West German defence minister Gerhard Schroeder had canceled plans to buy the Jaguar supersonic fighter aircraft under development by France and Britain. Instead, they will buy 220 Phantom aircraft, a similar supersonic of American design, it was reported.

TURNING BACKS'

The Germans were "turning their back on the European aeronautic industry" with this decision, the French said. They charged that the turn-about would hurt all European air production and might even endanger development of the Jaguar.

(Government officials in Bonn denied the reports, saying they had not yet made a decision on the Jaguar, which they consider a "next generation airplane." West German budget problems are alleged to be the basis for reluctance to co-produce the Jaguar.)

Twenty Dead Malay Riots Spreading

KUALA LUMPUR (UPI) — The bloody rioting that began in Penang over devaluation of the currency last week has spread to within 10 miles of the federal capital, Malaysian police reported Wednesday.

Police said one man was killed and two others seriously injured in a clash between Malays and Malaysian Chinese in the Batu Tiga area of Klang district, exactly 10 miles west-southwest of Kuala Lumpur.

The latest reports of killing brought the total number of deaths in the rioting to 20, and the injured numbered in the hundreds.

The first word that the rioting had spread from Penang came on Tuesday night with reports of racial clashes in the neighboring states of Perak and Kedah.

Miner Dies After Fall

LILLOOET (CP) — Alex Walker, 25, of Bralorne, died in hospital following an accident at the Bralorne mine, 100 miles north of Vancouver. Officials said the miner fell 130 feet down a mine shaft.

The government imposed a round-the-clock curfew on an area of several hundred square miles in the states of Penang, Perak and Kedah. But it was believed there would be no curfew in the Klang district because it might cause alarm in the capital.

Also Tuesday night, police said a man who broke the curfew in Penang was shot after he ignored the challenge by a member of the security forces.

In the state of Perak's northern Krian district, the slashed body of a woman was found at Sungai Achea.

NARBONNE (UPI) — Thousands of French winemakers manned barricades across major highways and railroad tracks in southern France Wednesday in a campaign of "violent action" against the government's decision to resume Algerian wine imports.

Leaders of the wine growers association warned that morning-long demonstrations, which temporarily paralyzed rail and highway traffic, were only a "prelude" to forthcoming protests.

"It is necessary to choose between French wine growers and Arab wine growers," said an association leader at Arles. "The action will not end if the government does not revoke its decision."

Most of the demonstrators formed human barricades across the railway tracks and highways in keeping with their organizers' instructions, "no sabotage, only barricades."

But telephone poles were burned or chopped down during the night in many areas and an explosive charge was found in front of a flood-gate.

The demonstrations were non-violent generally.

The wine growers, already stuck with vast quantities of unsold wine because of overproduction, were bitter over the government's decision to allow partial resumption of wine imports from Algeria, as part of President de Gaulle's campaign to woo the Arab states.

Welder Dies

BURNABY (CP) — Jack Hutton, 49, a welder, was crushed to death when a row of 450-pound grease drums broke loose at the Shellburn refinery.

Israeli Defeat Syria's Method

BEIRUT (UPI) — President Atassi of Syria told cheering thousands in Damascus Wednesday that victory over Israel in war was the only solution to the Middle East crisis. Reports from Algiers indicated President Boumedienne also has ruled out any political solution to the dispute with Israel.

Even as Damascus radio broadcast Atassi's defiance of the United Nations and another rebuff to fellow Arab leaders advocating moderation, a high-level Syrian delegation flew to Moscow to urge the Kremlin to take a tougher stand in the Middle East.

SOVIET REBUKE

The Soviets recently have been urging the Arabs to adopt a more moderate position in the crisis and only two days ago, the Soviet press rebuked "hot-heads in some Arab capitals."

Sources in Moscow said Syrian Premier Zayyan had asked to come to the Soviet capital to protest personally against the Kremlin's backing of the British-sponsored UN security council resolution on the Middle East.

KREMLIN FIRM

The sources said the Syrian protests would be of little avail. They said the Kremlin has shown no signs of backing down on its willingness to make limited concessions to secure a Middle East peace and the reopening of the Suez Canal.

Atassi also said he would boycott the proposed Arab summit conference, expected early next month. He stayed away from the Arab summit in Khartoum, Sudan, last summer in protest against what he regarded as a trend toward moderation on Israel.

Radio Rabat, in a broadcast Wednesday night, announced that the Arab summit meeting would begin in the Moroccan capital on Dec. 9. King Hassan issued invitations to the conference last Friday and the Arab League was reported to have approved the site.

In Yemen

British Rule Ends

ADEN (AP) — At the stroke of midnight Wednesday night, South Arabia became the independent South Yemen Peoples Republic, ending a bloody rebellion and 12 years of British rule.

The republic will be ruled by the National Liberation Front headed by Qahtan Al Shabbi, who hammered out a final agreement with the British in Geneva Wednesday and then flew back for the independence celebrations.

ONCE SOUGHT

The 47-year-old Al Shabbi was being sought by British security forces as a terrorist as late as August. But between then and now, his NLF seized control of the 14 sultanates and emirates that with Aden made up the British protectorate of the Federation of South Arabia.

Left out in the cold was the rival Front for the Liberation of South Yemen, which lost a struggle to the NLF. But both had attacked the British in Aden.

Scarcely 12 hours before independence, the last 900 of a British force that once numbered 12,000 pulled out.

The nation of 112,000 square miles, mostly of scorching desert, has a population of 900,000, mostly Arabs.

Arabs erected triumphal arches throughout Aden and decorated buildings with red, white and black light bulbs, the colors of the new republic.

In the streets where Arab once fought Arab and Arabs fought British, thousands turned out for the celebrations.

A joint communiqué said the major issue of British financial aid will be worked out later. Britain will continue its aid at the current rate of $144,000,000 a year for the next six months.

Detached Retina Suspected

Smallwood May Face Surgery

TORONTO (CP) — Newfoundland Premier Joseph Smallwood entered St. Michael's Hospital Wednesday suffering from a suspected detached retina of the eye.

The premier, 67, who had planned to leave Wednesday night for Scotland to receive an honorary degree from University of Edinburgh, announced his change of plans at the afternoon session of the Confederation of Tomorrow Conference.

He will be examined by eye specialist Dr. W. P. Callahan.

If only a tiny spot on the retina becomes detached, it often can be welded back into place with a high intensity flash of focused light. Immediate treatment is essential to save the sight in the eye.

If the detachment is greater, surgery may be necessary.

The premier earlier said in a broadcast to Newfoundland that the operation was necessitated by an eye injury brought on by excessive lack of sleep during the last five weeks.

Mr. Smallwood, one of the most vocal premiers at the conference which began Monday, arrived here Sunday from a European trip that included a visit to Czechoslovakia.

It was learned that the 66-year-old premier—he will be 67 next month—spoke to Premier John Robarts of Ontario about his eye injury and that the Ontario government co-operated in arranging for the operation.

Education Minister F. W. Hickman will head the Newfoundland delegation for today's session of the conference.

Smallwood became premier in 1949. Government sources in St. John's say he has never been ill except for a cold.

Richard Zamuck, production chief of 20th Century Fox studios, announced Jacqueline Bissett, 22, will fill the role

Mia Replaced in Frankie's Movie

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Mia Farrow, separated from husband Frank Sinatra last week, was replaced in her husband's new movie Wednesday by a busy British newcomer.

Originally scheduled for Mrs. Sinatra.

Miss Bissett, under seven-year contract to the studio, made her film debut in Two for the Road, and recently completed The Sweet Ride for the studio. A blonde, she is at native of Surrey, England.

Zanuck said he hoped production on the film would resume sometime next week.

Another Secret of Life Unmasked by Science

PASADENA, Calif. (LAT) — A new form of DNA, the basic genetic material of all life, has been discovered by California Institute of Technology scientists.

It is shaped in a series of loops connected like links in an iron chain. Genetic chains of as many as seven links have been found.

Space Body

Job Cut Hits 1,704

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. space agency announced Wednesday it will eliminate its 1,704 jobs — 5 per cent of its total force — because of Congressional budget cuts.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the reduction was necessary because Congress had given it only $4,800,000,000 of the $5,100,000,000 it requested for the fiscal year that began July 1.

NOT ALL

But NASA said not all of the job holders would be fired. It said part of the cutback would result from not filling vacancies as they occur. The agency will do what it can, a spokesman said, to find new employment for discharged workers.

NASA, which now employs about 32,000, said 640 employees would be dropped from the payroll at the Marshall space flight centre at Huntsville, Ala., by Jan. 13.

ALSO HIT

This is nearly 10 per cent of the centre's present employment of about 7,000.

The manned spacecraft centre at Houston also is scheduled for a "reduction in force" but the actual number affected there is expected to be relatively small because of current vacancies, a spokesman said.

Aussie Rocket Scores

ADELAIDE (CP) — Australia Wednesday fired into orbit her first satellite, the 107-pound Wresat, to measure solar radiation levels in space.

A 70-foot American Redstone rocket placed the Australian capsule into orbit.

The launching, postponed Tuesday because of an air conditioning unit failure, put Australia into the space club with the United States, the Soviet Union, France and Canada.

The satellite is to orbit for about 40 days. It will investigate solar radiation levels some 60 miles above the earth and collect data for upper-atmosphere weather research. The capsule circles the globe every 99 minutes.

Wresat stands for Weapons Research Establishment Satellite.

Canadians Join U.S. Exercise

The largest Pacific area exercise of its kind by fleet units of Canada and the U.S. in the past three years started Tuesday off the Southern California coast.

Exercise Lotus involves 24,000 men in 45 ships, six air units and a U.S. Marine expeditionary brigade. Four destroyer-escorts from Esquimalt—HMCs Yukon, St. Croix, Saskatchewan and Qu'Appelle—are taking part.

Crash Kills 11

HAVANA (AP) — The Cuban radio reported 11 persons were killed and 12 injured in a train-bus collision near Havana.

Does Mental Stress Make You Physically Ill?

Emotional stress can produce real illness — a true change in body chemistry and structure. Case histories show that "heart disease," "nerves," "migraine," "a serious "back ailment" were all caused by an emotional disturbance in the patient's life. December Reader's Digest reports that emotion-caused disorders now account for perhaps two out of every three illnesses. Don't just sit and talk; how he diagnosis an illness, he suspects stems from stress. This absorbing and helpful article also tells how you can help your doctor decide whether your illness was caused by an abrupt change in your daily life. It's in December Digest — on sale now.

NATURAL BOND

The discovery was made by Jerome Vinograd, professor of chemistry and biology, and two graduate students, and is reported in the current issue of Nature, the world's most prestigious science journal.

RING-SHAPED

Until recently DNA was thought to exist only as very long molecules in the nuclei of animal and plant cells. In the past year, however, biologists have found ring-shaped DNA molecules in the cells, although not in the cell nucleus.

Now the chains of DNA have been found in the mitochondria of cells. The microscopic structures that make up the energy-generating apparatus of the cells.

Victoria Mountie Honored

MONTREAL (CP) — Constable Richard H. Bennett has received RCMP's highest award — the Commissioner's Commendation — a certificate for bravery.

The 20-year-old Mountie, born in Victoria, saved three persons from drowning last June 10 after their motorboat capsized in the St. Lawrence River.

Lawyers Given Remands

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two lawyers, one a former football player, were remanded in magistrate's court Wednesday for trial on fraud charges.

Edward David (Ted) Duncan, footballer and former Calgary alderman, is charged jointly with Frederick C. Foy with defrauding Prosper Oils and Mines Ltd. of $217,000 by pledging company funds as security for loans without lawful authority, and with theft of Prosper securities.

Duncan, 34, is free on $7,500 bail, and Foy, 42, on $2,500 bail, until the Jan. 17 trial.

Innuendo Held Even Worse

VANCOUVER (CP) — Counsel representing George E. P. Jones, former chairman of the B. C. purchasing commission, claimed Wednesday Premier W.A.C. Bennett slandered Mr. Jones by insinuation and innuendo worse than any specific charge.

Tom Berger was presenting arguments in the B.C. Court of Appeal against Premier Bennett's appeal seeking to have a $15,000 slander judgment dismissed.

The premier was ordered to pay Mr. Jones the amount for remarks he made at a Social Credit meeting in Victoria in March, 1965.

The remarks followed dismissal of criminal charges against Mr. Jones, who had been accused of accepting benefits from a person doing business with the government.

"The defendant (Premier Bennett) implied Jones was unfit for office and his words carried the implication that the charges were true," Mr. Berger told the appeal court judges.

"Mr. Murray says the premier was making a jocular reference about Mr. Jones and one would almost get the impression that the premier was about to burst, subsequently retired by special legislation which gave him a full year's salary and full pension rights."

Mr. Berger said the fact that Mr. Jones received pension privileges did not detract from the fact that the legislation was in evidence of this.

Longer Smoke Costlier

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Irrespective of what Finance Minister Sharp's minibus budget does this evening in the way of new taxation, users of 100-millilitre and king-size cigarettes are going to pay more for their pleasure.

Imperial Tobacco of Canada, the country's largest manufacturer, is raising the price of its 100-mm. cigarettes by four cents a pack and its king size by one cent. Rothman's is reported following suit.

The reason for the price adjustment is said by Imperial to be an effort to bring the company's selling price of its longer cigarettes more into line with actual costs of production. Regular-size cigarettes are not affected.

The popularity of the longer-sized cigarettes has grown sharply, largely because they have been selling at same price as the shorter ones.

Anti-Anti

Subsidy Helps Tobacco

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian government spent more than three times as much on subsidies to tobacco farmers last year as it did on its anti-smoking campaign, the Canadian Medical Journal reports.

The journal notes that $129,612 was spent on anti-smoking propaganda as part of a five-year program to educate Canadians about the dangers of smoking, and $465,809 was put in the pockets of tobacco growers.

The anti-smoking campaign is in its fourth year and the government has shown indications it might be giving in to pressures to curb or ban cigarette advertising.

Mrs. Margaret Rideout, parliamentary secretary to Health Minister Allan MacEachen, told the Commons this month that "legislation will probably be required and we are examining such measures."

Parental Row

Irish Baby Traced To Canada

BELFAST (CP) — Northern Ireland police said Wednesday they have been informed a baby boy taken from its pram outside a Belfast shop Nov. 16 has been traced to Toronto.

However, they said they have no grounds for prosecution and the matter appears to be one for straightening out between the parents of nine-month-old Anthony Bertola.

The boy was brought here this fall by his mother, Belfast-born Mrs. Anthony Bertola, after a separation from her Canadian husband.

WHILE SHOPPING
Police officers said she was shopping in a Belfast business section when, witness said, two men made off with the youngster.

Investigation determined that the father had picked up the boy and apparently had left Northern Ireland by the time the mother got a High Court injunction Nov. 18 forbidding his removal from the country. Since the injunction was issued there was no offense against Ulster law.

Stanfield

Camp

Out of Turn

Skipper Chides Camp

Ottawa (CP) — Conservative Leader Stanfield has wished off party president Delton Camp for speaking out of turn on foreign policy, informants say.

The telephoned rebuke followed Camp's Nov. 6 Toronto speech, which was critical of Canada's role in both the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the North American Air Defense Command.

Camp was told his high position in the party prevents him from speaking out on all matters as though he was a private citizen.

CAMP AGREES

He was also told, in effect, in he wary of making speeches on topics that the party itself had not come to a conclusion on or of making contrary pronouncements. Camp agreed with Stanfield's view.

Camp's Toronto speech, delivered to the Board of Trade Club, was an expansion of earlier remarks made at the party thinkers' conference in Montmorency Falls, Que.

In that one, Camp called for a more independent international role for Canada, devoid of cumbersome military alliances.

He told his Toronto audience Canada's contribution to both NATO and NORAD, the country's two major military alliances, is negligible, although he stopped short of advocating complete withdrawal.

Other suggestions included one to limit Canadian military commitments to peacekeeping missions and the rejection of a nuclear role for Canadian armed forces.

FIRM HAND

The Stanfield intervention reaffirmed some views that the newly-elected leader intends to keep a firm hand on the helm of the party, which suffered from internal disputes under former leader John Diefenbaker.

Stanfield told his members of Parliament about his call to Camp, who played a key organizing role in Stanfield's victory at the September leadership convention in Toronto.

There was no indication that the incident led to any deterioration of relations between the two longtime colleagues.

Letters, Wages Up in U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to raise postal rates next year and give federal employees a $2,600,000,000 pay raise.

The combined rate measure passed 85 to 2 and was sent to a joint Senate-House conference committee to iron out slight differences with a bill passed by the House earlier.

The bill would raise the price of U.S. mail for first class letters from five to six cents, first class postcards from four to five cents, airmail letters from eight to 10 cents, and airmail cards from six to eight cents.

Legal Threat Hits Sewers

LAKE COWICHAN — Three Victoria men who own summer homes on the Cowichan River, have threatened court action against the village of Lake Cowichan if council carries out its proposed sewer program.

Dr. Norman Cook, Gordon Harris and Oswald Bass, through a mutual solicitor, informed council they are very much against the proposed point of discharge, which is above the three properties.

The council's present plan for the proposed $560,000 sewer project is to discharge treated effluent into the Cowichan River, at a point 1,300 feet east of the village boundary.

Sewerage Lagoon

The design includes a large lagoon east of the village which will hold four months' effluent during the summer months when the river is low.

In this way, none of the sewage will be discharged into the river during the summer months.

Health authorities have advised council if the sewer project is completed as proposed, it will be a model plant for efficiency, chlorine content and treatment of effluent, for other B.C. communities.

Council had previously received protests from the three property owners, and councillors had stressed the fact that the effluent will be treated before being discharged into the river.

However, the three property owners have stated they want the discharge point moved to a location below the properties.

Value Loss

The solicitor's letter stated if council proceeds under the present plan, the protesters will obtain a "permanent injunction."

Highway Hopes Dimmed

Extension of the Island Highway from Kelsey Bay through to Port Hardy is still some years in the future, Highways Minister Gagliardi said Wednesday.

He said it would cost approximately $250,000 a mile to complete the 40 miles or more of highway required to link up with north Island roads now being constructed from Beaver Cove to Port Hardy.

"This makes it a pretty costly proposition," Mr. Gagliardi said, after making an on-the-spot survey earlier this week. "I didn't promise anything, but the big thing at the moment would be proper ferry service for cars and passengers from Kelsey Bay to Beaver Cove."

INTERNAL LINK

Mr. Gagliardi said the most pressing need of the north Island is for internal communications, roads and ferries linking the rapidly expanding centres of population, rather than a costly highway link with the southern half of the Island.

Within about five years, he predicted, hovercraft ferries will be linking all major centres.

"There's a revolution going on up there," the minister said. "All those islands are going to be inhabited because they've got so much to offer."

WOODWARD'S

Candidates At UVic

Candidates for election to Victoria city council will speak before students at the University of Victoria on Monday. The meeting will begin at 12:30 p.m. in the Student Union Building.

Witness Sought

It was the case of the wandering witness after a two-car accident at Pandora and Cook at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

A motorist stopped at the accident scene and told Douglas Hill, 154 Oak Park Place, he had seen the whole thing, but before names could be exchanged traffic forced the willing witness to move. He promised to return but didn't show up, leaving Mr. Hill without a witness and with a problem.

The man could ease Mr. Hill's dilemma by calling 477-6643.

Arbitration Talks Dec. 14

Salinity arbitration talks between the Greater Victoria School Board and its 1,200 teachers will begin Dec. 14 with Victoria lawyer Gerald J. Sullivan as chairman, it was announced Wednesday.

Village clerk Bill Chappell stated, "There is another possible point of discharge into the river below the three properties which the village's consulting firm and village council may consider, if costs are not prohibitive."

He said when the survey was carried out by Associated Engineering Services Ltd. of Vancouver, council was informed the estimated cost of the extension to below the three properties would be between $35,000 and $50,000 which could bring the cost of the project to over $600,000.

Cost Rise

Mr. Chappell also noted the original $560,000 estimate for the sewer project was made almost two years ago, and the cost may be higher now.

A previous plan by the engineers was abandoned last year.

The original scheme was to build an oxidizing trench in the village, and the effluent would receive final chlorine before being discharged into the river.

With regard to the letter from the three property owners, council members decided to seek advice from the consulting engineers before any decision is made concerning the location of the discharge outlet.

Councillors had hoped to have the sewer project bylaw voted on this December, but the delays have made it impossible.

Mr. Chappell said, "The council is now awaiting the approval of the project from the Pollution Control Board, and we will then present the bylaw to property owners."

The plan will provide an up-to-date sewer scheme for some 700 properties in the village of Lake Cowichan.

Ethiopian Beauty Pageant Has Emperor's Blessing

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — Emperor Haile Selassie has given his blessing—and $2,000—to a beauty contest to select Miss Addis Ababa. The girls are told they owe it to Ethiopia to make it a success.

"Ethiopia is famous throughout the world for the beauty and grace of its women, and in staging this pageant we are paying our respects to one of the glories of the empire," said the information minister, Dr. Menasie Haile.

A special organizer, with the rank of assistant minister, has been appointed to run the show and young men have been urged to turn talent scouts.

Ann

Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing this letter in the hope it will reach the thousands of parents whose children have gone off to college for the first time.

I am a registrar in a Midwestern co-educational college. I have seen dozens of students quit and go home because they were homesick. Other students equally homesick, have stuck it out and gone on to graduate.

The difference between these two groups is invariably the parents. It is amazing to me how many otherwise intelligent parents tell their kids who blubber on the phone about homesickness, "You don't have to stay there if you don't want to. Come home."

Then there are parents who write to their kids and tell them how much they miss them, how sick they've been and how hard up for money they are. Naturally the student who is not very enthusiastic about college in the first place is inclined to chuck everything and come home "for the sake of the folks."

Wise parents understand the value of a college education and do everything they can to help their children get that diploma. The student who is told, "This is a major challenge, stay there and meet it," will often do just that. The student who is permitted to throw in the towel and come home after a few weeks (or months) may well develop a defeatist approach to all of life's challenges.—JOHN W. HAUER, RAPID CITY, S.D.

Dear J.W.H.: Thank you for superb letter. I have long suspected that parents who allow their kids to fold out of college within the first few weeks or months do so because they, the parents, are lonely and want the child at home. I hope your letter opens up a few thousand eyes around the country.

Dear Ann Landers: One sentence from you will settle this argument.

Is it good taste to display cheques with the wedding gifts? I feel that it is not, since some of my less affluent relatives gave us rather modest cheques as compared to the well-heeled folks on my fiancee's side whose cheques were downright staggering.

My parents feel it is spirit of the giver and not the size of the gift that counts. They say all cheques should be on display.

What is your last and final word on this?—BATTLE WEARY

Names in the NewsLefties Not Right For Mail Sorting

VANCOUVER — A Vancouver post office spokesman has confirmed that only righthanded letter-sorters are hired because "a lefthanded sorter bails up the works."

Vancouver-East NDP Harald Wiens raised the matter in the Commons earlier, noting a post office ad for Christmas help said only righthanded people need apply. State Secretary LaMarsh expressed "shock" and promised a probe.

The postal spokesman said it's not discrimination—lefties work on other jobs. He explained addresses are inverted when the southpaws sort, making delivery more difficult for the postman.

LOS ANGELES — Joseph Amsler, 26, who won a retrial on a technicality after conviction for the 1963 kidnapping of Frank Sinatra, Jr., pleaded guilty at his second trial to the same charge. He will be sentenced Jan. 8.

LONDON — Christie's sold a series of letters by the late Albert Einstein for $36,000 to a U.S. buyer. The letters were written by Einstein's lifelong friend Dr. Gustav Bucky from 1940 to 1958 and were offered for sale by Bucky's widow. The same buyer paid $15,800 for a series of Ernest Hemingway letters to an Italian friend, Adriana Ivancich.

WASHINGTON — Former U.S. president Dwight Eisenhower has donated his 189-acre Gettysburg, Pa., farm to the government as a national historic site, the White House announced.

LOS ANGELES — Trans World Airlines was sued for $3,000,000 by a woman whose husband was one of 69 people killed in a Los Angeles-Cincinnati flight Nov. 20. Margaret Cey, 33, of Rolling Hills, Calif., charged her husband John was killed due to negligent and careless operation of the aircraft.

VANCOUVER — Dennis Daniel Walton of North Surrey, who lost an eye and suffered disfigurement while a passenger in a car accident, was awarded $19,000 in B.C. Supreme Court. Justice J. G. Botman gave judgment against Gary Tedorak of New Westminster for gross negligence.

LONDON — Rumors of a new revolutionary move in the Dominican Republic arose with the disappearance from his diplomatic post of Col. Francisco Caamaño Deno, leader of the 1965 Dominican revolt which brought U.S. military intervention.

TIJUANA, Mexico — Police said U.S. attorney James Thornton, 24, of Anaheim, Calif., burned himself to death on a hill just outside this city. Military orders he carried indicated Thornton was due to go to Vietnam Dec. 6.

BUDAPEST — Ferenc Muenich, a veteran Communist who was Hungary's premier from 1958 to 1961, died at 81.

LOS ANGELES — Composer-pianist Walter Gross, who played his first piano recital at 10 and wrote the song Tenderly, died at 58.

OTTAWA — The Canadian Union of Students asked Finance Minister Sharp for cash tax credits for students to pay their way through university. Hugh Armstrong, CUS president, said Sharp was non-committal.

COPENHAGEN — The royal palace says Denmark's Princess Benedikte, 23, will marry Prince Michael-Casimir of Germany Feb. 3 in the Frederiksborg Castle Church.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. — Dr. Michael Simko, a podiatrist, warned in the latest issue of Current Podiatry that children may injure their feet by sitting on them while watching television.

OTTAWA — Career civil servant Jacques DeRoches, 48, of Ottawa, was named chief commissioner of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

A couple living common-law admitted in central magistrate's court Wednesday to using worthless cheques to buy gold and diamond rings and a watch worth a total $198, moving Magistrate William Oster to describe the operation as "something of a betrothal racket."

Glen Gerald Davis pleaded guilty to one charge of false pretences and was remanded to today for sentence. Valerie Einarsen pleaded guilty to two counts of false pretences and was remanded to Dec. 6 for a pre-sentence report.

Davis bought two gold rings worth $51.45 by cheque from Shore's Credit Jewellers, 1409 Douglas, on Nov. 20. He later sold these to another jeweller for $10, court was told.

WORTHLESS CHEQUE

Miss Einarsen bought a diamond engagement and wedding ring set worth $98.83 from Stoddart Jewellers, 605 Fort, Monday with a worthless cheque.

Detective Napoleon Bouchard said that Miss Einarsen bought a watch and a ring worth $45 from the Old Gold Shop, 315 Douglas, Nov. 17 and also received $12 cash for the worthless cheque.

Det. Bouchard said Davis and Miss Einarsen were living together and he believed there would be 13 more charges against the women.

Magistrate Oster told Miss Einarsen: "This seems to be something of a betrothal racket between you and the last accused, pretending to be preparing for the happy event . . . Most engaged couples require only one set."

Miss Einarsen said she and Thomas Penston, 18, of 950 Empress, was committed for trial by Magistrate Oster on a charge of possession of marijuana. He has elected trial by judge without a jury.

Constable Gerald O'Neill said he and two other policemen found two juveniles seated in the front seat of a car Nov. 4 in the 1100 block Princess.

DRUG IN BOXES

Two matchboxes were found on the curb next to the car, and a third was found under the front seat of the car, Constable O'Neill said. An analysis of the plant-like substance inside the boxes showed it to be marijuana, court was told.

Constable O'Neill said he also found a cigarette butt inside the car, and it was also found to contain marijuana.

John Hutcheson, 27, of Toronto was sentenced to 18 months in jail on four counts of fraud. Hutcheson, who pleaded guilty last week, used marijuana cheques to buy $135 worth of goods Nov. 16 and 17 from The Bay and Woodward.

Hutcheson was on parole at the time of the offences, court was told, and admitted convictions for breaking and entering, car theft and false pretences.

James Henderson was fined $50 for causing a disturbance Tuesday night in front of 426 Montreal, where he had taken a room. Henderson shouted, used obscene language and smashed a small window with a crutch, court was told.

An 18-year-old youth who was picked at 68 miles an hour Tuesday night on Bay between Ties and Rock Bay was fined $75 and had his licence suspended when he pleaded guilty to careless driving.

Gary Doughty, 1770 Fort, was also ordered to attend Saanich police's traffic safety program at the Saanich courtroom Dec. 13.

Model Car Real Model of Safety

NEW YORK (AP) — Motor Vehicle Commissioner Vincent L. Tofany has displayed a New York state-financed scale model of a "safety sedan" that he says would withstand a front or rear end impact at 50 miles an hour. The model, developed at a cost of $385,000, was shown at a press conference Tuesday.

Among the score of safety features are:

• A periscope that juts up 12 inches and operated automatically as soon as the car jagged edges that would impale a pedestrian.

MONTRÉAL, November 30th—Just 25 days 'till Christmas . . . and if you're still in a quagmire about gifts, here's a bonanza you'll use for money. I have a wonderful solution. It's called the "Scotia Plan" loan from the helpful BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA. Whether you need money for a big gift—car, colour TV or whatever—or for lots of small gifts, it's easy to arrange. As long as you're dependable, that's all that counts at Scotiabank. So why fret? Relax and enjoy this holiday season . . . with a little help from The Bank of Nova Scotia.

TO FEEL FRESH AND FEMININE ALL OVER, there's no better addition to your toiletries shelf than SHY. The modern, hoseless feminine syringes. There are no bottles, no cleaning, no awkward hanging. And Shy is small and discrete . . . tucked into a compact carrying case so you can keep it handy wherever you go, and no one will be the wiser. No wonder Shy is the most popular syringe in North America! Ask for it by name at your favorite druggist—you'll be so pleased you did.

STILL THINK SALT IS JUST A SEASONING? Then you haven't heard how handy WINDSOR SALT is for other uses around your home. Personal hygiene, for instance. One teaspoon of Windsor Salt in a glass of warm water makes an excellent mouthwash—or gargle. An antiseptic dentifrice that helps whiten teeth, reduce gum disease and fight the breath. I use it in tea from the box. If you're a hesitant about having a salt box in the bathroom, the Windsor Salt people have come up with a charming idea—a decorative apothecary jar, imprinted in black with the word "Salt" in old English script. This can be yours for just $1.00, plus the Windsor "W" from the two-pound box as proof of purchase, mailed to Windsor Salt, P.O. Box 6326, Montreal.

VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA

"100% Colombian coffee should always be vacuum packed to keep it 100% fresh," says coffee grower Juan Valdez.*

Juan wants his coffee to come to you as fresh as the day it was ground from the beans. Because only then can you appreciate the full flavour of his 100% Colombian Coffee.

Juan and coffee growers like him spend their lives growing coffee beans that deliver a richer, fuller taste.

Five thousand feet up in the Colombian Andes, the volcanic soil has had 300,000 million years to become rich in minerals. And the tall Guamas trees there spread a tent of shade so the beans can ripen slowly.

And since the harvest goes on all the year long, only the fully ripened beans are chosen, every one of them picked by hand.

These are the reasons why 100% Colombian Coffee tastes so good. And why Boban vacuum packs it to keep it that way.

Nuclear Standoff No Longer True

LONDON (UPI) — An authoritative publication on military power said Tuesday the United States and Soviet Union should enter a "mutual survival pact" against the nuclear potential of Communist China and France.

Jane's All the World's Aircraft, a 58-year-old encyclopedia and standard strategic reference of governments everywhere, said in its 1967-68 edition the U.S. and Soviet Union had learned that a major war was "mutually suicidal" since they had the air and missile weaponry to kill each other. Jane's also said the Soviet Union had made great strides in its rocket power. It said if Soviets had not launched a man around the moon by now, Komarov had not been killed in April 24. His flight had been the first Soviet manned flight in more than a year and the man around the moon by now," Jane's said Washington and Moscow are now at a nuclear stalemate and that war between them was "unthinkable."

A time element which once favored one or the other of the super-powers no longer existed, it said.

"Time is on nobody's side now," the review said.

But, it said, "unfortunately, there are no longer only two actual or potential super-powers. China will almost certainly have nuclear-tipped, medium-range ballistic missiles within one year, an initial intercontinental ballistic missile capability in the early 1970s and a significant force by the mid-70s."

WORK BEGUN

Communist China's potential, it said, compelled America to start work on an anti-ballistic missile system. Moscow was following suit.

"It is in the face of these facts and the unpredictable, uncompromising 'anti-imperialist' policy of the Chinese leaders that America has been compelled to go to the expense of creating a limited Nike X defence system," Jane's said.

"Newswomen has returned to international politics and Russia, too, has begun to emplace 'Galosh' ABMs around Moscow and other centres."

WHAT OF FRANCE?

The U.S., Soviet Union and Communist China were not the only nuclear nations to consider, Jane's said.

"What about France?"

The review detailed the "formidable array of silo-based and submarine-based strategic missiles, mobile tactical missiles, all with nuclear warheads," which it said France "will have at its disposal by the 1970s."

Jane's also predicted the nuclear capability would extend to other nations.

Ocean May Give Heat

PORTLAND (AP) — A research firm has suggested the Pacific Northwest think about putting a series of atomic power plants in the Pacific Ocean.

A spokesman for Battelle Northwest said Tuesday at a Bonneville Power Administration meeting this plan could make good use of the excess heat that would be given off by the plants.

Battelle Northwest, which has done long-range atomic studies for the BPA before, suggested this heat has always been looked upon as a problem — not an asset. Conservationists have complained that heat generated by Columbia River plants raises irrigation water taken from the sea.

'Farmers Hit Hardest By Inflation'

Half the amount the consumer pays for agricultural products is eaten up by transportation and distribution costs, and this is a situation the farmer is going to have to fight, provincial Agriculture Minister Frank Richter said Wednesday.

Speaking to the annual convention of the British Columbia Federation of Agriculture in session here, Mr. Richter said modern farming now is a business venture rather than a way of life.

It is considered a segment of an industrialized society, and if it is to be successful the most modern practices and techniques will have to be used.

PRODUCE PRICES

The farmer is one of the principal victims of inflation, the minister said, and it seems he is expected to run his operation in a 1967 style with produce prices at a 1957 level.

The fact that modern farming involves heavy capital outlay and constant revision of farming practice and equipment is not reflected in the prices he gets for his product.

"Nutrition level in the country has never been higher and everybody, it seems, no matter how low his income, can afford butter and eggs and milk," Mr. Richter said.

NOT THE CASE

The country has accepted the idea of creeping inflation, and it seems to be satisfactory as long as wages go up accordingly, he said. But this is not so in the case of the farmer.

Farmers are finding their interests would have to be extended far beyond the borders of their properties, Mr. Richter said.

More and more the trend is for the producer to do his own marketing, and, on the other hand, the man who markets is moving into the realm of production.

CHEAPER MEANS

If the agriculturalist is going to compete, he is going to have to find faster and cheaper means of both production and distribution and this, said the speaker, is where organizations like the B.C. Federation could be of service.

As small companies are being merged into big ones in manufacturing, said Mr. Richter, so the number of farms is declining but, despite urbanization, it is still an important factor on the national scene.

One-quarter of the Canadian labor force is engaged in processing products from the land, and 30 per cent of all heavy manufacturing is of products for use on the farm.

"Nutrition level in the country has never been higher and everybody, it seems, no matter how low his income, can afford butter and eggs and milk," Mr. Richter said.

The country has accepted the idea of creeping inflation, and it seems to be satisfactory as long as wages go up accordingly, he

France-Quebec Pact Rapped by Pearson

Ottawa (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday he has no quarrel with France having a national interest in Quebec.

He said in a CBC television interview Britain had a national interest in Canada for a long time. So why shouldn't France?

But Pearson said he would like to see the capi-

RIGHT, PROPER

Pearson also said it was right and proper for him to talk about international affairs in the way Gen. de Gaulle talked about Canada's

Pearson's news conference remarks went further than his Canadian remarks last July during which he called out the Quebec separatist slogan: "Vive le Quebec Libre."

The prime minister said the Canadian constitution must be altered, but de Gaulle went further by talking about sovereignty for Quebec, and of liberation. The prime minister said he interpreted that as meaning independence for Quebec.

People outside Canada should not tell Canadians how to run their affairs, Pearson said. Mr. Pearson said there had to be more bilingualism in the civil service, the armed forces and other areas. If Quebec didn't need the federal government "we wouldn't be making any progress at all."

He would like to see the capi-

No Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — Separatist MP Gilles Gregoire was turned down Wednesday in a bid for an emergency Commons debate on what he called Prime Minister Pearson's encroachment in the affairs of Britain and France. Speaker Lucien Lamoureux said the date was not urgent.

The prime minister did not think the pro-secessionist Estates-General, which met earlier in Quebec, was an accurate representation of the people of Quebec.

Pearson thought the Conference of Tomorrow Conference was a better meeting because the federal government was not represented except by officials.

Mr. Pearson was "unhappy" with Alberta Premier Manning's opposition to constitutional guarantees for French-language rights outside Quebec. Mr. Pearson favored the guarantee as an objective for Canada exchanges of youth and sports groups. France and Quebec agreed in principle to set up the office earlier this year.

The justice minister said Mr. Johnson might be accompanied by a couple of Quebec cabinet ministers. There were no plans for a joint mass meeting of the Quebec and French cabinets.

He said the premiers' trip would follow preliminary work on stepped-up Franco-Quebec exchanges arising from the July visit to Canada of President de Gaulle. The French ministers of education and youth also visited Quebec this year.

France has announced a ten-fold increase in the amount of money it has earmarked for its Quebec exchange agreements, signed in 1965 under the authority of Franco-Canada umbrella agreement.

In other developments, one member of Quebec's 13-man delegation to the conference has returned to Quebec City. Jacques Parizeau, a part-time financial adviser to the cabinet, was called back to the Quebec capital to take part in annual budget preparations.

French Stand

Bennett Blames Ottawa

The B.C. government blames Prime Minister Pearson for the latest controversy involving French President de Gaulle.

Premier Bennett charged Wednesday that de Gaulle in effect was encouraged by Ottawa to push his designs on Quebec.

Highways Minister Gagliardi said Mr. Pearson should stop his "fancy dan" talk and "take the gloves off and tell this guy where to head in at."

TERrible BLUNDER!

The premier said the federal government made "a terrible blunder" last summer when it didn't make clear that President de Gaulle was being invited "to the capital of Canada only."

"Instead, they let him go up the St. Lawrence River in a warship and go into Wolfe's Cove. This was symbolic of the recapture of Quebec. It was a disgraceful error."

NO INTERPRETING

Mr. Bennett said he "certainly" expected the French president's latest "meddling" in Canadian affairs after the outburst during de Gaulle's Quebec visit last summer.

Mr. Bennett was asked if this expectation had anything to do with the fact that B.C. was the only province not represented by its premier at the conference. He replied that people were entitled to interpret his actions, but he would not do it for them.

Improved French B.C. Goal

TORONTO (CP) — British Columbia hopes to obtain teachers from France to improve French instruction in that province, Attorney-General Robert Bonner told the Conference of Tomorrow conference Wednesday.

Bonner said the problem of finding capable teachers is a stumbling block in promoting bilingualism in B.C. He hoped, however, that with co-operation of the federal government the situation can be improved.

"We hope we can get some teachers from France to take a sabbatical," he said.

QUESTIONABLE

Bonner said that according to statistics there are supposed to be 50,000 bilingual persons in B.C., but he is listed among that number which indicates the quality of bilingualism is questionable.

Premier Walter Weir of Manitoba and Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta also spoke briefly as the conference returned to the theme of English and French language in Canada for the first 15 minutes of the morning session.

Weir said legislation relating to French instruction was approved unanimously in his province in this Centennial Year. Manning said he would make available to delegates copies of Alberta's School Act with amendments dealing with French instruction.

Johnson to Tighten French Ties

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec will discuss operation of the Franco-Quebec cultural and educational agreements with President de Gaulle during a visit he expects to make to Paris early in 1968.

Mr. Johnson indicated his intention to make the trip Wednesday when questioned by reporters at the Confederation of Tomorrow conference. He ruled out January as the time of the visit, but did not elaborate.

Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec said later that such a visit by Mr. Johnson would be related to semi-annual meetings of the Franco-Quebec committee set up to supervise the agreements.

Mr. Bertrand said no date has been set for the Paris meeting, whose chief purpose would be to establish the nature of educational exchanges for the school year beginning in September 1968.

Other key projects under discussion include the setting up of a Franco-Quebec office to handle exchanges of youth and sports groups. France and Quebec agreed in principle to set up the office earlier this year.

The justice minister said Mr. Johnson might be accompanied by a couple of Quebec cabinet ministers. There were no plans for a joint mass meeting of the Quebec and French cabinets.

He said the premiers' trip would follow preliminary work on stepped-up Franco-Quebec exchanges arising from the July visit to Canada of President de Gaulle. The French ministers of education and youth also visited Quebec this year.

France has announced a ten-fold increase in the amount of money it has earmarked for its Quebec exchange agreements, signed in 1965 under the authority of Franco-Canada umbrella agreement.

In other developments, one member of Quebec's 13-man delegation to the conference has returned to Quebec City. Jacques Parizeau, a part-time financial adviser to the cabinet, was called back to the Quebec capital to take part in annual budget preparations.

Ottawa, Quebec Agree About Job Training

OTTAWA (CP) — Agreements have been completed between Ottawa and Quebec for federal financing of adult job-training in that province, the manpower department announced Wednesday. The federal government pays the costs of training courses operated by the provinces and provides trainees with a grant of $35 to $90 a week, depending on family size.

Australia Aswarm Too Many Rats —More Fleas

DARWIN (Reuters) — Rats swarming across northeastern Australia eating everything from dormice to old boots have started devouring each other, it was reported here Wednesday.

The rodents were thriving in the intense heat of Queensland state, breeding in fissures in rocks.

No relief from the rats was expected before the arrival of the rainy season when they were expected to drown in the cracked earth.

An area of 50,000 square miles was affected, including some of the richest cattle country in Australia.

The rats stripped large areas of lush bush country clean of all vegetation.

What's more, Spanish fleas will be imported to Western Australia to join the war on rabbits.

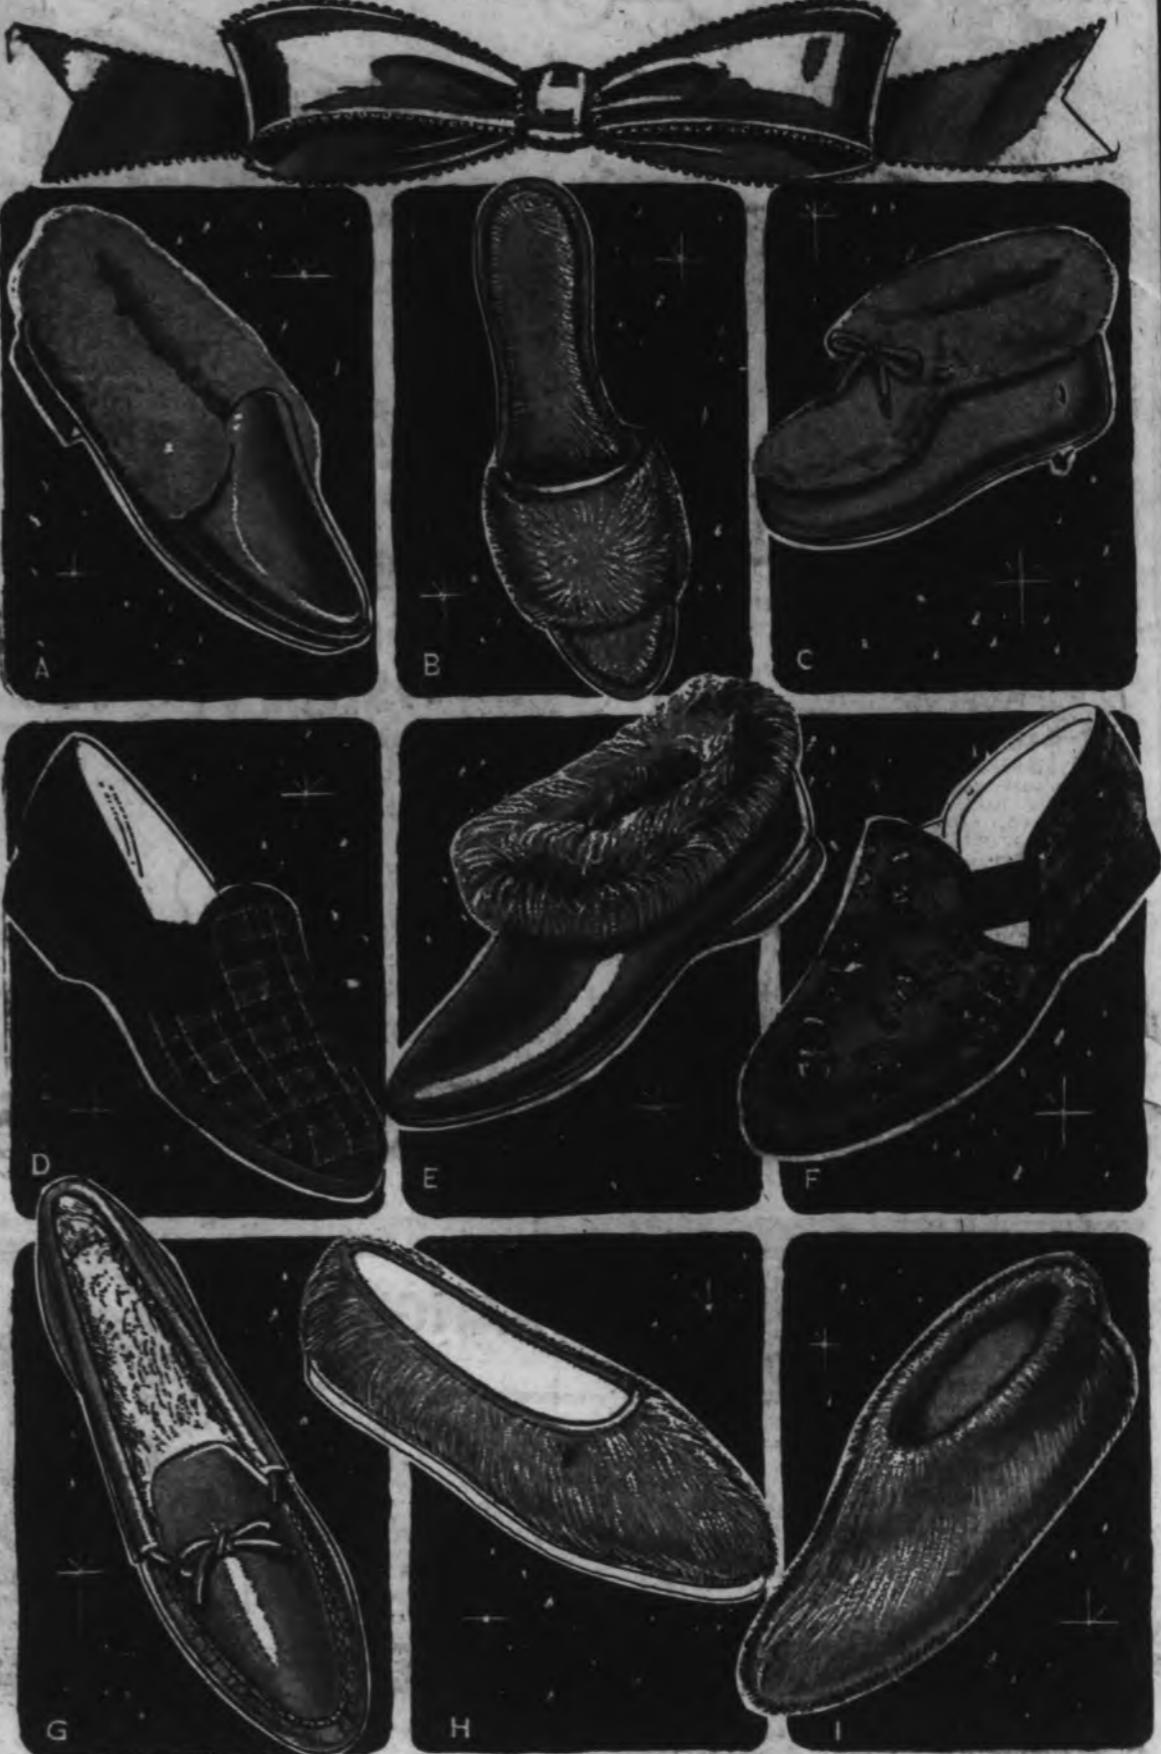

The agriculture department said thousands of fleas from Spain would be used to introduce myxomatosis to the rabbits, scourge of Australian wheat crops. They breed only on rabbits.

Sewers, Garbage Big Items

Questions about sewage and garbage disposal stir up the most comment — and produce a diversity of opinion — in a poll made this week of candidates in Saanich's Dec. 9 municipal election.

The Association of Women Electors circulated a questionnaire among the 13 candidates contesting the reeve and four council seats. They were also questioned on their attitudes toward a municipal chronic-care hospital, parklands, recycling processes and records of council meetings.

However, here are the reasons to the waste disposal queries, which a poll by The Daily Colonist indicated is probably the main issue of the campaign.

Reeve

Incumbent Bertie Curtis: With garbage, he's intrigued by the Japanese compacting technique but hopes "real progress" on this question can be made soon in the entire capital area. He argues sewage can be dumped into the sea through long, deep outfalls.

Gordon Campbell: Study all possible alternatives to the present garbage dump and make similar studies by a team of scientists, medical and health people, of sewage disposal. Alternatives must be economically feasible.

Council

Henry Adams: Buy a Japanese press for the garbage and give the residents plastic bags so they can be simply picked up on the street, eliminating two men from each garbage crew.

Mrs. Leslie Bell: On the garbage question, get proven data from qualified people. She is firmly against the disposal of raw sewage into the sea and hopes the existing outfall "problem" will be dealt with soon.

Joseph F. Belfit: Backfill the garbage dump, rigidly control existing sewage outfalls. He also considers "seaside zoning."

Incumbent William Campbell: He's interested in the burning, composting and landfill methods of garbage disposal. The regional sewer proposal, involving discharge of comminuted sewage into deep tidal waters, will solve the problems.

Patrick Frampton: Eliminate the "disgusting mess" of the garbage dump and, although dumping raw sewage into the sea seems to be the only economical method, he's not in favor of it. Treatment plants would cost the area $16,000,000.

Incumbent Edith Gunning: Garbage disposal must be attacked regionally but she favors sanitary landfill. She also favors extension of existing outfalls far out to sea, at great depth, as recommended by the metropolitan sewer study.

Thomas Foster Isherwood: The regional district should handle garbage disposal problems. On the sewer question, federal and provincial assistance should be sought and pollution control must be the main object of any system.

A. W. Meader: Composting of garbage should be considered but until a more suitable method is proven, the present dump is the best. Sewage into the sea, through proper outlets, is the best for this location.

Incumbent William Noel: He suggests incineration or combustion of garbage for sanitary landfill. Such combustion could reclaim low-lying lands. On sewers, he wants the regional plan implemented as soon as possible.

Lionel Curtis Speller: The federal government should take the lead in a "national cleanup" and he is prepared to accept this type of legislation to solve garbage and sewage problems in Saanich.

Francis Edward Waring: Garbage should be disposed of on a regional basis, by sanitary landfill or incineration. The regional sewer study's proposal for sea dumping of sewage is satisfactory provided the effluent is treated.

Financial Statement

in

PLAIN WORDS

Annual Statements and Balance Sheets sometimes seem as though they were drawn up only for the trained eyes of accountants and financial experts. For those of our customers, shareholders and friends who are neither of these, we present the highlights of our 1967 operations, compared with those of the previous year, in plain, straightforward terms:

	as of Oct. 31st
	1967	1966
Funds entrusted to us:	$1,349,397,711	$1,207,480,124
In personal accounts used mainly to accumulate savings	1,523,637,046	1,632,023,519
In business accounts to meet payrolls, purchase materials, pay taxes and other obligations	$3,173,034,757	$2,839,503,643
Total of customers' deposits
Commitments made to assist customers in their foreign and domestic trade transactions and miscellaneous accounts payable	91,151,394	106,796,168
Funds committed to take care of possible losses on loans and investments	46,625,870	40,314,504
Funds provided by shareholders for general corporate purposes	12,500,000	—
Funds supplied by shareholders to provide banking offices and equipment and as a reserve to protect our customers' funds	134,949,032	130,514,304
Total funds available for investment	$3,458,300,753	$3,116,928,619
These funds were employed as follows:
Cash resources — to meet the daily withdrawal of funds by customers	612,615,868	532,776,005
Call loans and Government of Canada securities available to provide additional cash at short notice	716,184,480	586,488,883
Funds lent to provinces, municipalities and corporations by investing in their securities	197,239,487	195,101,495
Funds lent to customers to finance their business operations as well as to enable them to acquire their homes and for other personal needs	1,816,935,555	1,674,323,415
Lands, buildings and equipment needed to provide our customers with convenient and efficient facilities at our 695 branches	24,497,701	21,883,352
Other assets — mainly customers' commitments to "The Bank" covering foreign and domestic trade transactions	90,827,662	106,355,469
Total funds employed	$3,458,300,753	$3,116,928,619

That in simple terms sets out our position as at October 31, 1967. A measure of our progress is the fact that our total assets rose by $342 millions or 11 per cent to $3,458 millions and our revenue from all sources increased by $26.6 millions to $194.9 millions. Profits after taxes and all charges amounted to $12.3 millions equivalent to 82 cents a share as compared with 73 cents a share in the 1966 fiscal year, and dividends were increased from 48 cents per share to 51 cents per share. In terms of total funds employed The Bank operated with a profit margin of about 0.37 per cent. It was a year of expanding service to our customers and to them we extend our thanks for their continuing confidence. It was a good year because of the loyalty and teamwork of our 9,672 employees across Canada—good reason for us to feel assured that...

Drivers, Doctors Aren't Awake

By JOHN MATTER

How certain can you be that the next car you pass will not have an unconscious driver behind its steering wheel?

The answer to the question, as ascertained through research by a provincial public health team, is that you can't be certain.

They claim British Columbia's drivers and doctors aren't paying enough attention to diseases and drugs which can cause high-way carnage.

The group came to the conclusion after reviewing each of the 155 accidents in which drivers allegedly suffered "blackouts" last year.

Earlier Review

These accidents and their causes were reviewed in a paper given to the American Association for Automobile Medicine in Cincinnati last month by Dr. A. A. Larsen of Victoria, provincial director of epidemiology.

"There is good evidence that drivers with certain medical disabilities do become involved in 'blackout' accidents, and these conditions should be considered more seriously than has been the case up to now," said Dr. Larsen.

He was assisted in the study by L. W. Hole, senior research officer, and Barbara MacKenzie, epidemiological clerk.

Some Findings

Here are some of their findings:

Drugs prescribed by doctors, mainly tranquilizers and sedatives, caused seven accidents after the drivers suffered blackouts.

Another seven drivers suddenly lost consciousness in epileptic seizures. Three of them were injured and one was killed in the ensuing crash.

Seven more drivers ended up in accidents as a result of insulin shock.

Prior to Crash

They were diabetics who were forced to miss a meal or had done unexpectedly heavy work prior to the crash.

Twenty-four others reported sudden onsets of illness as the cause of their accidents. They included people who suffered a acute alcoholic withdrawal, bleeding ulcers, sudden chest pain, sneezing, asthmatic episodes, bee stings and instances in which the driver was overcome by heat.

Twenty-four drivers fell asleep just before their accidents. Most of these drivers gave long hours of work as the reason for this sudden loss of consciousness.

More Blackouts

There were other cases of alleged blackouts, but their causes were never medically established.

Dr. Larsen speculated that it was "quite possible that the alleged blackout was only offered as an excuse in the hope of escaping legal action for careless driving."

"We were surprised at the number of hypoglycemic episodes (diabetics with insulin problems) that resulted in an accident and one result of this study has been a more careful review of the medical history of diabetics that are brought to our attention," says the study.

Michener Defends Doctor

TORONTO (CP) — Governor-General Roland Michener, discussed the "great work" done by Dr. Gordon Murray with diners guests at a German-Canadian club.

Dr. Murray, 73, involved in a controversy over a new procedure in spine operations, was a house guest of the Governor-general last weekend after he was presented with the Order of Canada for his medical work.

"They love picking on him," said the Governor-General.

Scholarship Repeated

For the second year in a row a Victoria man has won a scholarship in Vancouver.

J. B. Murray had the highest aggregate marks for second-year students at a recent graduation ceremony of the Certified General Accountants Association of B.C. Last year he had the highest aggregate marks for a first-year student.

LSD High Priest Tunes Out

Hippies Traded For Wedlock

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. — Dr. Timothy Leary, chief advocate of LSD, has tuned out of the hippie movement and married a former aide who went to jail rather than testify against him, it was disclosed Wednesday.

Leary, 47, a former Harvard lecturer who became an advocate of the mind-expanding drug, married Rosemary Woodruff, 32, "in a mountain in the middle of a desert" in California, his attorney said.

Noel Tepper of Poughkeepsie, who has represented Leary in a tangle of legal troubles arising from the use of drugs, said he plans a second wedding ceremony at his estate in nearby Millbrook.

Leary, who has expressed disenchantment with the run the hippie movement has taken, is stepping down as leader of the League for Spiritual Development, which he founded to promote the use of hallucinatory drugs.

Leary, whose presence stirred controversy wherever he spoke, told Tepper in a letter last week he wants to retire from the glare of publicity and lead a more private life.

A Laredo, Tex., federal judge sentenced Leary to a 30-year prison term and a $30,000 fine for illegally carrying marijuana across the Mexican border.

Leary is appealing the sentence, which was handed down nearly two years ago.

Duthess County Judge Raymond Baratta cited Miss Woodruff for contempt in May, 1966, for refusing to testify against Leary. She maintained she couldn't testify because it would violate her religious beliefs.

She went to jail for 25 days and paid a $250 fine but later appeared before the grand

Snow Must Go

TORONTO (CP) — A bylaw passed by the Borough of Etobicoke council requires residents to remove snow from sidewalks in front of their houses within 12 hours of it falling.

Anyone convicted under the new bylaw will face a $300 fine.

Your first Volvo will get you out from under car payments for life

Your second Volvo will give you a bank account

Your third Volvo will put one of your kids through two years of college. Clothes and all.

No, we're not pulling your leg. We're merely doing simple mathematics. Like this:

First Volvo. Drive it six years. That gives you three years to pay for it, three years to make payments to yourself after you've paid for it.

Second Volvo. Take the payments you've made to yourself and pay cash for the second Volvo. Drive it six years and continue making payments to yourself that time. (At, say, $80 a month for six years you'll end up with a nice round $6,000.)

Third Volvo. Take some of that $6,000 and pay cash for your third Volvo too. (You'll still have about $3,000 left.) Continue making payments to yourself for six more years. You now have nearly $9,000. Enough for college, and your fourth Volvo. And you can take it from here.

Will it actually work? It will if you want it to. Will Volvos actually hold up for six years? In Sweden Volvos hold up an average of 11 years. In there are no speed limits on the highways; there are over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads.

See a nearby Volvo dealer. He can have a Volvo Canadian in your garage tomorrow. It's the only genuine do-it-yourself money-making machine we know of that the Government doesn't frown upon.

Denis Hearing

Judge Dismisses Mistrial Motion

OTTAWA (CP) — A defence bid for a mistrial was dismissed Wednesday by Judge Bruce Macdonald after 13 days of court hearings into charges against Raymond Denis of attempting to obstruct justice.

Judge Macdonald heard 90 minutes of legal argument on the mistrial motion in the absence of the jury then summoned the 12 men jurors into the courtroom and advised them of the motion and his dismissal. But the trial struck a further hitch shortly afterwards when the Crown and the defence notified the court that each side has motions to present to the court.

Neither Crown Attorney John Cassells nor chief defence lawyer Louis Assaly disclosed the nature of their motions while the jury was present.

Denis, former executive assistant to the federal immigration minister, is charged with attempting to obstruct justice by trying to dissuade Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne from opposing bail for narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard three years ago.

Lamontagne was a lawyer for the United States government, which was seeking at that time to extradite Rivard from Canada for trial in Texas. Rivard's extradition was subsequently approved in Montreal and he was tried and convicted. He now is serving 20 years in prison in Atlanta, Ga.

Lamontagne testified that Denis offered him $20,000 July

14, 1964, at a meeting in the office suite here of the immigration minister not to oppose bail for Rivard.

The mistrial motion by Assaly arose Tuesday during testimony by Joseph McLeod, former RCMP sergeant who was one of two police investigators into Mr. Lamontagne's complaint against Denis.

In a series of questions Mr. McLeod had been asked what his opinion would have been in 1964 if Denis had walked out on the interrogation at RCMP offices.

Assaly contended these questions and replies were improper for the jury to hear and objected to McLeod being asked his opinion of the truthfulness of Lamontagne's statement to the RCMP.

Judge Macdonald told the jury Wednesday that the only opinions that matter in the trial are those of the jurors themselves. They should not be swayed by opinions of lawyers.

TV TALK

By BRUCE LWTHER

PEOPLE AND PROGRAMS: The latest gimmick on U.S. stations takes me back to those old movie big-band shorts. Three-minute films of rock 'n' roll stars lip-synching their latest hits are involved, with the record producers paying the shot. Already they're on 70 U.S. stations, although I haven't seen any from Seattle—yet.

The Screen Actors Guild, Hollywood's most influential union, has held its annual elections. Officers are Charlton Heston, president; Whit Bissell, Macdonald Carey and Ricardo Montalban, vice-presidents, and Marie Windsor, secretary. B.C.'s Alan Young is a director . . . Apropos of nothing at all, the public relations man for the pop group Paul Revere and the Raiders is a Thomas Jefferson.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Wednesday's wacky answer—Edgar Bergen's puppets were Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd, Paul Winchell toyed with Jerry Mahoney and Knuckledhead Smiff, and the long-haired little kid who tortures Senior Wences is Johnny. But pronounced Yonny.

Today's question

—Doctor shows bare me, but people seem to like them. Take Dr. Kildare. In fact, name the four actors who played Drs. Kildare and Gillespie in the movies and on TV.

And add the name of the ambulance attendant in the movies, and the name of the hospital in both. Answer Friday.

"I could be mistaken, but it sounds like they're using CANNED walking and teeth gnashing."

Thursday's Highlights

C-6:00 p.m.—Ted Reynolds shows a film of the international ski finals in Canada last winter—2.

6:00—An educational-network interview of Ingrid Bergman, who could educate quite a few people—9.

C-7:00—Ski Nanny goes to Garibaldi Park—5.

C-7:30—Perry Como's first special this season includes Rowan and Martin, Bobby Gentry, the Jefferson Airplane—5.

C-7:30—A couple of real comic talents combine: Carol Burnett and Don Adams—12.

C-8:30—Telescope: Medicine Hat rancher Gene Burton tells why the old west was best—2.

C-9:00—Don Rickles, the only good insult comic, uses the Dean Martin show to roast a bunch of celebrities. Other guest: Lena Horne, the Andrews Sisters—8.

C-10:00—Good Company visits Billy Graham—4.

C-10:00—Dean Martin again—5.

C-10:30—The Miss Grey Cup pageant in Ottawa—2.

Hooke Testifies:

Victoria Visit Dull Reading

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's welfare minister testified Wednesday that an Edmonton commissioner told him how to lobby for city approval of a rezoning application.

A. J. Hooke told the Kirby royal commission that Geoff Hamilton, then city commissioner in charge of planning, told him in 1964 the minister had "been patient too long" about a claim by Ideal Homes Ltd.

Earlier testimony has indicated Ideal Homes was seeking compensation through rezoning, property exchange, or direct payment for a 10-year series of land transactions.

Ex-Director

Spokesmen for the company have said it was left with a piece of northwest Edmonton property it considered unsuitable for development. Mr. Hooke had been a company director until about 1955.

During his testimony before the judicial inquiry Wednesday, Hooke also told of a "real cloak and dagger drama" in an Edmonton motel in 1964, describing a meeting with an alderman and a newspaper reporter of which the inquiry had already heard from three previous witnesses.

The commission, under the chairmanship of Mr. Justice W. J. C. Kirby, is investigating allegations that Hooke and E. W. Hamilton, former provincial treasurer, used or attempted to use their public office for private gain.

Amount Named

Hooke said Hamilton first came to see him in 1964 and suggested the city buy the land from Ideal Homes.

"He also suggested the amount that should be paid — $140,000."

"And he said to me as I recall: 'Alf, you've been patient too long. The city will ask you to compromise but don't compromise one penny. I'll argue this strongly... this should have been done long ago.'"

He said Hamilton told him on another occasion, "You know there's only one way to get this agreed to, and that is to carry on a lobby."

Aldermen Listed

The commissioner had listed aldermen's names and added beside them the names of "people he thought would have the most success in lobbying the aldermen."

A handwritten unsigned memorandum was entered as an exhibit. On one side it listed the names of 12 aldermen, with initials or names opposite them. On the other, it contained instructions to write to the secretary of the municipal planning commission and said: "The MPC will recommend the change in zoning to council and council will recommend this as an 'original recommendation'."

The minister also testified:

Edmonton alderman Ed Leger told him the same year he was "in danger" unless he answered a reporter's questions.

He said Jim Hume, former Edmonton Journal reporter, told him:

"In 48 hours, you'll be in a different position from Hume. He got fired; you'll run in and resign."

Hooke said he met Hume at Leger's South Edmonton motel July 30, 1964, one day after Hume resigned as provincial treasurer.

He said Leger asked him to come to discuss "a very urgent matter." When Hooke arrived, Leger had "looked at me and said, 'Alf, I don't know how to tell you this... you're in very grave danger.'"

"He shook his head and said, 'You know I'm a friend of yours, don't you?... I'd hate to see anything happen to you.'

"He said, 'you're going to have to answer some questions or else in 48 hours your life won't be worth living.'"

Hooke testified he asked, "This is blackmail, isn't it?"

"He (Mr. Leger) said: 'No,

MP Attack

Compulsory

Unionism

'Slavery'

OTTAWA (CP) — Compulsory unionism "is nothing more than a modern form of slavery" and both federal and provincial governments should act to abolish it, Social Credit MP Robert Thompson said Tuesday.

In a press release welcoming Monday's Supreme Court decision on the Dins Hoogendoorn case, Mr. Thompson said the decision should be a precedent for government action.

The court ruled that an employee whose status is being affected at an arbitration hearing has the right to be represented by other than a union that is taking a position adverse to his interests.

AWARD QUASHED

The decision quashed an arbitration award which ordered Red Hoogendoorn, of Orangeville, Ont., to pay dues to the United Steelworkers Union.

Mr. Thompson, MP for Red Deer who resigned last spring, said the Supreme Court decision is consistent with the bill of rights. "The steelworkers' favorite view is that all workers either support it as a condition of their employment or lose their jobs in an obvious violation of the Christian principles upon which Canada is founded," he said.

Victoria Visit

Hooke said he was asked about two occasions when he stayed in a Victoria apartment building owned by a company controlled by Allard.

He said Hume finally said, "How would you like to see it splashed all over the front page of the Edmonton Journal, the things you were up to in Victoria?"

"I said I didn't mind but it would make awfully dull reading."

"He said, 'It may surprise you to know we had a detective on your trail all the time you were there.'"

Why Not?

Hooke's account was interrupted at one point by W. B. Gill, counsel for Turcott and NDP Leader Neil Reimer.

"Why didn't you just walk out of there, Mr. Hooke?" he asked.

"I wanted to know what was going on, Mr. Gill," Hooke said. He said he remembered the evening's conversation in detail because he reported it the next day to the RCMP.

Hooke said he telephoned Premier Manning that evening and was present when the premier telephoned Basil Dean, Journal publisher, about 10:30 p.m.

He Complained

"The premier complained to Mr. Dean about your treatment by Hume in no uncertain terms," Gill said.

"Yes he did," Hooke said.

The minister said he received a telephone call and visit from Andrew Snaddon, then managing editor of the Journal the next day. He said Snaddon told him he had read the detective's report and it contained damaging information.

Snaddon had told him Hume had been suspended "for a while" and taken off his beat as legislative reporter.

Arranged It

Hooke said he was surprised when Snaddon testified he had hired the detective. Hooke said Snaddon told him Hume arranged the matter with a detective friend.

Hooke said that as he left the hotel, Leger told him:

"There are some other people I want to get. Hawrelak's into something real smelly; I want to put him through the meat grinder and there are two former cabinet ministers I'd like to get."

William Hawrelak was then mayor.

Stock Disease Fight Turning a Corner?

LONDON (CP) — A Canadian veterinarian, part of a 12-man team sent to help fight the disease, says he has been told Britain's foot-and-mouth epidemic "may have turned a corner." Dr. J. R. Singleton of Winnipeg said in an interview Wednesday British authorities are being cautious because the epidemic still is serious. Another 26 cases were discovered Wednesday bringing the number of animals destroyed to 218,000 at a cost in government compensation of some $27,000,000.

Singleton and other Canadian veterinarians were briefed by British officials soon after their arrival from Canada. They will be sent in pairs to six British control centres established to contain and eradicate the scourge.

ONTARIO MAN

"We will stay here as long as we're needed," Singleton said. "We have at least one veterinarian, Dr. J. A. McKenzie of Brockville, Ont., who participated in our own foot-and-mouth epidemic in 1952. Others have had some training in diseases similar to foot and mouth. We will gain experience as we work."

A group of Australian veterinarians will join the Canadians at the control stations.

BETTER OUTLOOK

"From what we were told Wednesday, I believe the situation is becoming most encouraging," Singleton said. "The epidemic may have turned a corner."

Britain's methods of eradicating the disease through animal slaughter has aroused much controversy in this country with some commentators arguing vaccination would be less costly.

"We fully support the British slaughter system which we follow in Canada," Singleton said.

"This has been an economic disaster for Britain with all its animal exports outlets blocked. But to start vaccination instead of slaughter would be to admit that the country cannot control the disease and must live with it. We would not admit British cattle to Canada under those circumstances."

Britain was the first to develop a slaughter program in 1892. We followed this country. In the control of cholera, for example, the Canadian slaughter program cost us the equivalent of one cent a hog. The United States uses a vaccination pro-

Vancouver Tackles Squealers

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council Tuesday passed a by-law banning noisy car drivers. The law, approved without debate, provides for a $100 fine or two months in jail for squealing tires or roaring motors and is effective immediately.

Anti-noise crusader Ald. Marianne Linnell said later she believed this may be the first bylaw of its kind in Canada.

Five Plants

Chrysler Strikes Near

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers said Wednesday it will strike five Chrysler plants across the U.S. starting Friday unless local contract disputes are settled.

The plants, one of which makes tank parts for the Vietnam war, employ 12,130 UAW members.

Chrysler and the UAW reached agreement on a new national contract Nov. 8, but local plant issues have remained unsettled in 34 of 138 bargaining units.

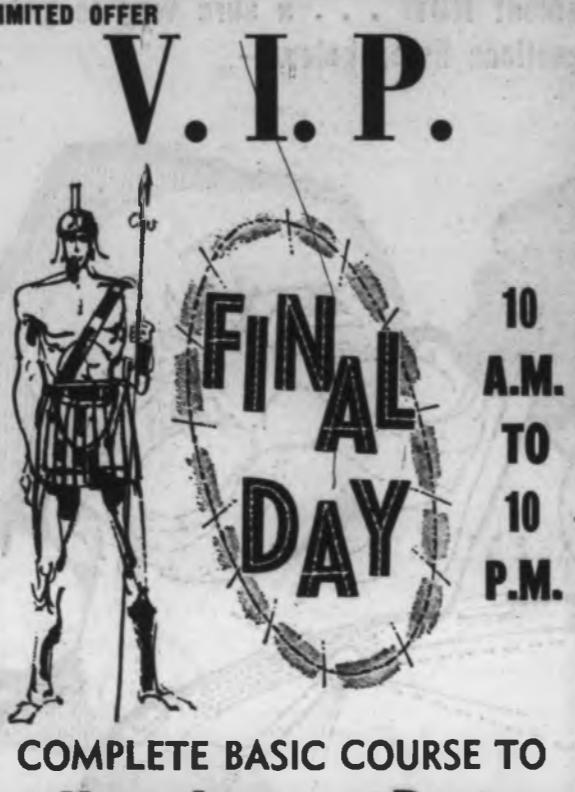

Work on the local agreements was held up until the national contract, including an agreement Monday on the "white collar" workers was wrapped up. The firm previously had been hit by scattered local strikes while the national contract was being discussed.

TANK PARTS

The salaried agreement to cover 8,000 employees was unanimously endorsed Wednesday by the UAW's Chrysler subcouncils and its ratification was urged. Some 3,500 salaried employees in the Detroit area will vote on the contract agreement next Tuesday.

The UAW said the five plants against which strike deadlines have been levied include the Scranton, Pa., plant which employs 230 persons. The plant has a defense contract for tank parts. The strike deadline there was set for 10 a.m. Monday.

The UAW said local agreements are still lacking in 18 of 60 production units and 16 of 78 salaried units.

Garden Notes

Secret Is Humus

By M. V. CHESTNUT

When you buy those beautiful long, straight carrots and other imported vegetables in the supermarkets, it might surprise you to know that much of the land on which these prize specimens were grown was poor, lean, sandy soil of no particular value until it was worked over and irrigated.

The soil in the market garden areas of Florida and much of Southern California is light and very sandy loam, originally very open in texture because of the comparatively large grains which make up its bulk.

Such sandy, infertile soil could be compared to a bucketful of peas, while heavier clay soils may be likened to a handful of flour.

The particles of flour are tiny and pack closely together, while the peas are large and rounded, with quite a bit of air space between them.

Air penetrates easily into coarse-grained sandy soil, the drainage is good, and the ground warms up much earlier in the spring.

It is thirsty soil, though, as water runs straight through it, for it has little ability to store moisture.

To get some body into such light land, the problem is to fill up the air spaces between the coarse grains so that moisture and plant food is retained.

At the same time, we must try to preserve the qualities of warmth and adequate drainage.

The material best suited for filling up these spaces between the soil grains is that mysterious jelly-like substance we call humus, which is the end product from the rotting of organic matter in the soil.

This can be manure, green cover crops, compost, leaves, litter, or anything else of an organic nature, including sawdust.

Close-grained dung such as cow and pig manure is especially good on light soils, as these beasts chew their food into a much finer state than the drier, coarser food of horses, and it has, therefore, a stickier and more binding action on the sand particles.

Such hungry soil isn't converted into a fertile loam overnight, though, for it will need to be fed regularly over the years with every scrap of vegetable wastes you can get your hands on.

Properly made and regularly fed with humus-making material, though, sandy soil can become highly fertile, for it has a texture and warmth which is congenial to the roots of almost all plants.

Crops are earlier, bigger and cleaner once its organic content has been brought up to a satisfactory level, and its moisture-holding capacity is vastly improved.

Perennial flowers, shrubs and bulbs have a much better chance of coming safely through the winter on well-drained sandy soil than on sticky wet clay soils.

Liming is nearly always necessary on light, sandy soil, as calcium is leached out so readily by the rain. This poses another problem, for lime accelerates the rate at which manure and other organic materials are used up, so further dressings are needed.

One way of slowing down this washing out of calcium and other plant nutrients is to keep the ground covered constantly, either with a surface mulch or with growing plants.

It should be the rule to scatter seeds of a green cover crop whenever any section of the plot becomes vacant, turning it under in due course.

Even a covering of weeds serves a useful purpose in winter by breaking the force of the rain and by retaining the plant nutrients near the surface.

Women Know Their Place, Says ART BUCHWALD

Why Japanese Are Happy

TOKYO — North American women could learn a lot from Japanese wives. Despite subversive attempts to liberate her, the Japanese wife is still a slave to her husband, who is her "only master on earth."

This has not only made for happiness in the Japanese household, but it also has kept the divorce rate down to 10 per cent, as opposed to the United States where 25 per cent of all couples seem to find reasons to split up.

These are the major differences between the American and Japanese women? For one thing, the Japanese woman is much more concerned about the welfare of her husband. On cold mornings, for example, I was told a good Japanese woman will prostrate herself on her husband's side of the bed, so he won't have to step down on a cold floor.

It's small gestures like this that make for a solid marriage and a happy home.

Another area in which Japanese women excel is giving their husbands baths. There is an old Japanese proverb that a "family who washed together sloshes together," and anyone who has been bathed by a Japanese woman will never want to take a shower again.

Unlike the American woman, a Japanese wife looks forward to giving her husband a bath. She stays home all day cooking the hot water so it will be just right when her husband arrives from a hard day at the office.

First the wife will bathe him, and then help him off with his clothes. Then she'll sit him on a stool and pour hot water over him. Then she'll start scrubbing him down with soap, making sure not to get any in his eyes. Finally, she'll rinse him off.

Only then will she allow him into the bathtub where he will soak up to his chin, while she serves him a cold beer or a hot glass of sake.

After the bath the wife will then massage her husband's back, and even walk on him if he's really tired. Then she'll dry him off and dress him for dinner. By this time the husband is in a good humor, and willing to listen to what the kids did in school.

Contrast this to the average North American home where the wife not only refuses to bow to her husband when he comes home, but in some cases won't even give him a bath. And when she does give him a bath it's clam bam, thank you ma'am, and about as romantic as a TV dinner.

Most American wives will run the water, hit their husbands a couple of times with a wash cloth, and then hand him a towel and say, "Dry yourself."

No wonder American husbands are irritable and hard to get along with, at the end of the day. You would be, too, if your wife refused to walk on your back.

American women are afraid that if they offer to bathe their husbands, they will be considered inferior. This is ridiculous.

A wife who knows how to bathe her husband in the Japanese style is a superior person, and one whom any husband would be proud of stepping on when he gets out of bed in the morning.

Liz Tucks It Away

NEW YORK (NANA) — No one has to tell Elizabeth Taylor to eat heartily. At Gallagher's she was putting away a huge steak, a baked potato, hash brown potatoes and two tall glasses of draught beer. Richard Burton kept up with Liz in the beer department, but took second place with the food. They are due in Vienna for Richard's cameo role in the star-packed picture version of Candy. What an eating feast for Elizabeth there.

You have to give Dyan Cannon an "A" for persistence. Even though her play is scheduled to close at the end of next week, she will not admit defeat and is hoping the producers will come up with another theatre. Her Ninety Day Mistress has been taking in $16,000 a week but the theatre owners needed more to make a profit.

You'd be surprised at the number of male movie stars who are wearing Richard Hartwich's "graduate hair growing" wigs. They come in three hairlines to eliminate the surprise. Bing Crosby went the other way. As he got older, the line receded. Another way of looking at it is to transplant the hair from the back of the head to the front.

Sean Connery is going ahead with his movie with Brigitte Bardot. But the western will be made in Spain instead of Mexico as Brigitte wants to be nearer Munich and Paris and husband Gardner Sacks ... David Merrick had to find another choreographer for How Now Dow Jones. Gillian Lewis, who also did the dances for the movie version of Half a Sixpence, had some problems with the management and quit ... If Cary Grant doesn't go to Europe, he'll accompany Bob Tipler to Miami for the Harry Belafonte opening at the new Hilton, Dec. 15.

While John Cassavetes plays Mia Farrow's husband in Rosemary's Baby, his wife Gena Rowlands is Frank Sinatra's girl in Tony Rome. A new design for living? ... Faye Dunaway's mini-dress was almost as high as her waist when she was presented to Princess Margaret at the Camelot premiere in London. The Princess managed to keep her face at eye level.

Seater Berger has a good reason for posing nude for a movie but not for a magazine. "Movies pay more," said she. ... Albert Flennery and producer Joe Cates and Hank Fowles bought the TV rights to Don Juan in Hell, from the Shaw estate.

Errol Flynn must have blushed in his grave when that British judge gave him such a strong rating in the sex department and as a swashbuckling hero, before giving a victory to Errol's widow, Pat Wymore, on the question of where he was domiciled at the time of his death. Jamaica, said the judge. Which means that Errol's property there will be taxed under British law. Beverly Adlard, the girl Errol had wanted to marry — he was separated from Pat — of course gets nothing at all.

Juliet Prowse was discussing Warren Beatty and his enormous success in Bonnie and Clyde, and also with women. "I went with him for about a year," she revealed to me. "He's marvelous, but too much trouble." I wonder what she meant.

Spider and the Fly

SYDNEY HARRIS

A reader writes to say that sometime within the last few years, I wrote a column about the femme fatale type of woman. "This type of woman, according to the column," the letter went on, "has a heart of stone, and is cruelly beguiling. She has the power to cause men to fall into her trap time after time."

There are, of course, women who would like to be femme fatales; but they are attractive only to men who are natural-born victims and losers.

For every murderer, Aldous Huxley once remarked in a novel, there is a murderer — and the men who are good (for she knows how little she deserves it), and resents those who are not beguiled by her.

Nobody has a heart of stone, though many persons build stone fortresses around their hearts, for they desperately fear their own vulnerability. And anyone who spins a trap for another is deeply enmeshed in a lifelong trap of his own making. Both the spider and the fly are involved in a deadly symbiosis.

The reader apparently feels sorry for himself, and wants to carry around a clipping to save his wounds. But such wounds are self-inflicted, and nothing can heal a man who remains stone-prone.

Moreover, the femme fatale is a pitiful object herself. She is incapable of loving men, of sustaining any personal relationship with them, and her need to hurt is merely the obverse side of her deeply buried desire to find a man who will dominate her.

Postman's 'Sidearm' Just for Emergency

By GEOEGE INGLIS

The repellent has come to Victoria, but it does not mean letter carriers have declared war on dogs, a post office official said Wednesday.

Dwight Green, superintendent of public service, said, "The repellent container will be issued to carriers, on request, only where there is actual menace."

"It is not intended for dogs in yards, but for those that are loose on the streets, and will be used by the letter carrier only in the event he is actually attacked."

Mr. Green said containers would not be issued indiscriminately, and not until it was determined there was no other means of handling the situation.

The present policy of communicating with householders where there are vicious or unruly dogs will continue, he said. Under present rules, a letter carrier does not deliver mail to a house if there is a menacing dog in the yard.

Postal officials call the householder and suggest the dog be tied up or kept inside for the approximate delivery period. If this request is not complied with, mail can be discontinued until some agreement is reached.

Mr. Green said dogs probably caused about 23 per cent of the injuries received by carriers, a figure which is the national average. Most problems are confined to the outlying areas, rather than commercial or heavily-populated areas with many apartments.

A strange fact about the crusty osmises, however, is the fact they seem to have an instinctive urge to attack men in uniform.

In support of this fact, Mr.

Green said, "Some people say this is because they have had abuse from some man in uniform, but we have a case in point that proves different."

The material in the repellent is a derivative of the pepper plant and causes the dog discomfort that wears off in 10 to 15 minutes, with no lasting effects.

postmen for the Indian Affairs Branch.

The first course began Nov. 20 at the Vancouver Vocational Institute and ends Dec. 15. During the last week of the program they attend classes at B.C. Packers' Celio Net Loft and shipyard on the north arm of the Fraser River.

More classes will be held early next year.

The program is sponsored by the Indian Affairs Branch and supported by the Fisheries Association of B.C. At the present course there are 16 fishermen ranging in ages from 20 to 45.

"The stress is on practical instruction because the objective is to improve the efficiency of the individual as a commercial fisherman," the spokesman said.

Boats operated by the fishermen include gillnetters, salmon purse seiners and trawlers.

For those unable to go to the Vancouver training centre, the Indian Affairs branch will soon send experts in fishing, boat maintenance and seamanship to the Coast villages.

When 15 or more Indian fishermen request such training, arrangements will be made to send expert instructors to teach in their villages, the spokesman added.

Constitution Talks

By ANTHONY WESTELL, Ottawa Bureau

TORONTO — Premiers Daniel Johnson of Quebec and Ernest Manning of Alberta moved dramatically closer Wednesday, in the Confederation for Tomorrow Conference, as they faced together the task of reforming the Canadian constitution.

Starting poles apart and apparently far from any possible agreement, they ended with hands almost joined on common purpose, if not practice.

It was a great day for the spirit of conciliation.

Nova Scotia's new premier, quiet-spoken, undramatic G. I. Smith, was the man, more than any other who moved the strong Quebecer and the determined Albertan to retreat from apparently inflexible positions to compromise.

TOUCHY QUESTION

The 10 provincial representatives began the third day of their conference facing the touchy question: what viable choices does Canada have about its form of federalism?

British Columbia's Attorney-General, Robert Bonner opened the session by urging reconsideration of the Fulton-Favreau formula for bringing the constitution to Canada and providing for its amendment.

Bonner argued that the delegation scheme was the key to flexibility in managing the country without the formidable task of making precise amendments in the constitution on which all 11 governments could agree.

SHOT DOWN

But Johnson quickly shot down that idea.

Quebec was not interested in a formula for bringing the BNA act to Canada and amending it, he said.

It wanted a new constitution.

Johnson was philosophical but unmistakably firm. He understood the British mentality which could get along without a precise, written constitution.

But French-speaking and new Canadians insisted on a written document with clearly established principles and protection for minorities which did not depend on the goodwill of the majority.

PROMISED HELP

He offered instead Quebec's plan for a new constitution in which all the powers not specifically granted to Ottawa would reside with the provinces.

(Under the BNA Act, residual powers not granted to the provinces reside with the federal government.)

But Johnson was also being pragmatic. He understood, he said, that some provinces might not want, or be able, to exercise all their powers under a new constitution, and they could delegate them to Ottawa.

PRAGMATIC WAY

"I think this is the pragmatic way to adopt a new constitution and to see that all the provinces are not obliged to exercise all powers," he explained.

Johnson appeared to be envisaging an arrangement under which small provinces or those more disposed to centralized authority, could delegate to Ottawa, while Quebec retained control of its own affairs — and thus developed a special status, not only in social and cultural affairs but also in economic and fiscal areas.

PROMISED HELP

Johnson readily conceded that there may be need for urgent amendments to the present constitution, and he promised Quebec's co-operation.

(Without a formal amending formula, Ottawa and the provinces at present have to agree unanimously when changes are required.)

Quebec Dam Feat World First

World first was scored by Hydro-Quebec engineers who Wednesday used available rock to plug entrance of power dam diversion tunnel on Aux Outardes River. About 450

Island's Hydro Load Nears Peak

'Brownout' Possible

B.C. Hydro is gearing for the possibility of a power "brownout" during an expected peak load period on Vancouver Island. Attempts to boost the transmission of power by submarine cable from the Lower Mainland have been delayed by failure of transformers to meet specifications.

"I don't want to get alarmed," Hydro co-chairman Gordon Shrum said in a telephone interview. "People have to bear in mind what a brownout is—something like sprinkling regulations."

CO-OPERATION

"The lights won't go out in homes unless we make a very foolish mistake. With proper planning, the average home should not be affected."

Shrum said Hydro already had the promise of full co-operation from Island industries. Plans are being laid for the shutdown of some industries at peak periods, if the need arises, the chairman said.

"Some industries will be advised ahead of time they will be shed from load at peak periods," he said. "This (shutdown) might be passed from one to another."

TWO YEARS

"Unless we plan ahead, and a breakdown occurs at a peak period, the voltage would just go down to the point where motors would burn out, and we're not going to have that."

Dr. Shrum said it would be two years before adequate standby capacity was available on Vancouver Island. Attempts to boost the transmission of power by submarine cable from the Lower Mainland have been delayed by failure of transformers to meet specifications.

The Hydro system for the province reached an all-time peak demand of 2,000,000 kilowatts last Monday, said Dr. Shrum. At that time, there was only one spare generating unit in the Vancouver Island system available in case of breakdown. What's worrying Hydro officials, however, is the fact that peak load usually comes in late December. They figure that if an all-time peak demand was reached by the end of November, it is likely to go still higher in the next month.

The submarine cable which links a transformer station near Ladner with one just north of Duncan alongside the Trans-Canada Highway consists of seven separate lines. Six form two three-phase AC current circuits and the seventh, formerly in the custody of his parents overnight and would be converted to DC.

To one mother of three, it meant her children were able to give each other gifts, and select a special item for themselves.

"They also decorated a corner of the basement they call their clubhouse, and gave a little party for their friends. This is a very important part of Christmas to them."

"We feel that truly Victorians expressed 'goodwill' toward their fellow men in a very kind way," another mother wrote. "We count it a privilege to live in such a lovely city. May God bless every giver!"

"I have always thought people in small towns were more warm and generous than people in big cities," another mother wrote.

Boy Killed In Nanaimo

NANAIMO — James Robin Savage, 6, of 22 St. David, Nanaimo, died shortly after being struck by a motorcycle Wednesday night.

R.C.M.P. said the lad was walking his bike across Eastvan Road, at the intersection of Quadra, when a motorcyclist, fleeing from police with lights out, struck him.

Police said a youth, 16, was in the custody of his parents overnight and would be charged this morning.

COQUITLAM (CP) — Furtive cigarette puffing has been stamped out at a high school here. The puffing now is done in the open — with the principal even handing out the ashtrays.

The program at Centennial high school in this Vancouver suburb is part of an experiment by Principal Cam McKenzie.

"The students who smoked were doing so on the parking lot and in the washrooms," said the cigar-smoking principal.

"It was a furtive thing that we didn't think should be a part of the school atmosphere."

"We surveyed the students and found that 30 per cent of them were smokers. A questionnaire showed that 75 per cent of the students, including the majority that did not smoke, were agreeable to providing an area where students could smoke in their free time."

Students who smoke must do so in the cafeteria.

YES TO FERRIES SPURS ALASKA

Alaska's Governor Walter Hickel, given a U.S. Coast Guard green light for a direct Alaska-Puget Sound ferry run, announced Wednesday that the new service would begin within 30 days.

B.C.'s Highways Minister Gagliardi immediately commented that he doubted if the service would ever materialize.

The coast guard, earlier Wednesday, approved a request by the governor to designate the waters between Ketchikan and Puget Sound as lakes, bays and sounds. Such a designation permits use of the three ferries now scheduled on the southeast Alaska run to extend service to the U.S. northwest, terminating at Seattle or Bellingham.

Elected by the coast guard decision, Mr. Hickel said the state plans to schedule the all-American ferry service "twice a week until the summer season starts."

FURTHER LOOK

"We'll then have to study the whole situation in relation to our long-range plans."

Premier Bennett said the Kelsey Bay-Prince Rupert service will not be resumed until April, once repairs and tests have been completed on the Queen of Prince Rupert, which struck a reef and was badly damaged last summer.

DIRECT SERVICE

Angered by the province's refusal to supply alternative facilities to fill the winter gap, Mr. Hickel applied for direct service right-of-way from the coast guard.

"If Alaska has got so many millions to throw around, perhaps that's what they should do," Mr. Gagliardi said. "But I think the U.S. federal government... might not take the same view."

Flood Program All Washed Up

Greenwell

LAKE COWICHAN—Flood control has apparently been scrapped by the provincial government, and residents will wait and watch the Cowichan River rise in the spring.

A letter from the provincial government to village council said if dredging is not the answer, there is no other scheme within economic reach.

So ends months of costly investigating, surveying and preparation of a preliminary report and recommendations for flood control on the Cowichan and Koksilah Rivers.

"This confirms what I thought all along," said Coun. Archie Greenwell.

Council members had previously notified the Water Branch they were "not in agreement with the present proposal to dredge the Cowichan River."

They suggested an alternative should be put forward.

In reply to the council's letter, the branch stated, "The remaining physically possible alternative scheme, involving the diversion of the Cowichan Lake flow into Nitinat River appears to be associated with a very high cost which is far beyond any benefit that may result from it."

Original estimates by engineers for the Nitinat River outlet included figures up to $5,000,000, although more recent estimates had been quoted at around the $2,000,000 mark.

However, the three property owners have stated they want the discharge point moved to a location below the properties.

The solicitor's letter stated if council proceeds under the present plan, the protesters will obtain a "permanent injunction" to prohibit the discharge of effluent into the river.

Value Loss

The letter also threatened court action against the village based on nuisance and damage for possible property value reductions from the discharge.

Village clerk Bill Chappell stated, "There is another possible point of discharge into the river between the three properties which the village's consulting firm and village council may consider, if costs are not prohibitive."

He said when the survey was carried out by Associated Engineering Services Ltd., of Vancouver, council was informed the estimated cost of the extension to below the three properties would be between $35,000 and $50,000 which could bring the cost of the project to over $600,000.

Cost Rise

Mr. Chappell also noted the original $560,000 estimate for the sewer project was made almost two years ago, and the cost may be higher now.

A previous plan by the engineers was abandoned last year.

The original scheme was to build an oxidizing trench in the village, and the effluent would receive final chlorine before being discharged into the river.

"With regard to the letter from the three property owners, council members decided to seek advice from the consulting engineers before any decision is made concerning the location of the discharge outlet."

Councillors had hoped to have a sewer project bylaw voted on this December, but the delays have made it impossible.

Mr. Chappell said, "The council is now awaiting the approval of the project from the Pollution Control Board, and we will then present the bylaw to property owners."

The plan will provide an up-to-date sewer scheme for some 700 properties in the village of Lake Cowichan."

Danish With Stream

At a quick glance, Danish freighter Ragnhild berthed at Nanaimo's assembly wharf looks like her self-loading cranes and masts have been shot away or swept off by heavy seas. But not so, the ship is one of the new streamlined freighters to come out of Copenhagen. Solidary two loading masts forward are efficient, but longshoremen said loading took longer than ships of comparable size.

'No Company Mayor'

PORALBERNI — What does the mayor do when he's not being the mayor?

That's a hot item in the contest for the top spot in this new amalgamated city.

All three men who are running have been mayor.

Former Mayor Loran Jordan has said he can give full time to the job, unlike his opponents. Present mayor Les Hammer, Port's postmaster, said this would limit the job of mayor to the rich or the retired.

Meanwhile Fred Bishop, former mayor of Alberni, hotly denied the suggestion that because he works for MacMillan Bloedel, he is the company candidate.

In another election issue aldermanic candidate Bob Dubbin was running hard on the demand for a better ambulance service, run out of the fire hall.

Region's Cost

Mr. Dubbin is the man who led a delegation to city hall to complain about ambulance service last year.

As he filed nomination papers, he said "the service should be operated out of the fire hall, and the cost should be borne by the regional district."

He is also concerned about the lack of building lots in the area. He said the new Redford Park "is fine, if you can afford it."

Any suggestion that the mayor's job should be a fulltime

Deputies

Efficient and knowledgeable staff, a city manager and deputy manager also made the need for a full-time mayor less urgent, he stated.

"Rather than confide prospective candidates to only the rich or the retired, we need individuals who have a current stake in the community . . . who are resident, working, worshipping, playing and raising their young."

Within city limits, right now."

A candidate's personal integrity, not his place of employment, should be the standard of his worth, Deputy Mayor Hammer said.

Exclusive

"This in itself would prevent 99 per cent of the taxpayers from throwing their hats in the ring for the position of chief magistrate," the mayor said.

However, it is absolutely necessary that a mayor be readily available to the citizens at all hours of the day and night, he said.

He added that he puts in an average of six hours a day, counting evenings, and weekends, on city affairs.

With his own office directly across from city hall, and his home only three blocks away, Mayor Hammer said he is always available for consultation. He added this compared with a distance of 12 to 14 miles from city hall for one candidate.

"The possibility of what some call company pressure has been raised. This charge is a myth in fact."

"They must indeed be hard up for ammunition," he said.

"Personally, I don't feel my employment is any disadvantage. It places me in the same category with about 85 per cent of our community."

"If every man who works for the company refrained from taking any active part in civic affairs, our city would be in a bad way."

"The possibility of what some call company pressure has been raised. This charge is a myth in fact."

"Similar foolish arguments could be developed against a businessman, a trade unionist, a retired person, a government employee or a teacher. The thing to judge is the man himself and his personal integrity, not his employment."

"I believe I have proved this during my past 16 years of municipal service to this community," he said.

Colorful List Under Attack

DUNCAN — Former school trustee of the Cowichan district Nancy Bailey is perturbed that names of Chinese and East Indian people are on separate sheets on the city voters list, headed by their respective nationalities.

She said: "What is the explanation for having several categories on the voters' list, especially in Canada?"

"I don't think there is a place for this in this country. In my opinion this is wrong."

"We are all taxpayers. Why discriminate?"

She said: "Of course, there is no discrimination."

"That never entered our minds when we prepared the voters' list. There is no discrimination against any nationality."

He said the separate sheets on the voters' list for people of Chinese and East Indian origin is merely an aid for voting personnel to facilitate the issue of ballots.

"In some cases it is almost impossible to identify the applicant."

Mr. Berry said to keep Chinese and East Indian names on separate sheets has been the practice for the past five years.

He added: "Next year the complaint by the Duncan ratepayer will be taken into consideration and Chinese and East Indian names will be listed alphabetically on the voters' list."

Victoria Mountie Honored

Montreal (CP) — Constable Richard H. Bennett has received RCMP's highest award — the Commissioner's Commendation — a certificate for bravery.

The 30-year-old Mountie, born in Victoria, saved three persons from drowning last June 10 after their motorboat capsized in the St. Lawrence River.

Lawyers Given Remands

Vancouver (CP) — Two lawyers, one a former football player, were remanded in magistrate's court Wednesday for trial on fraud charges.

Edward David (Ted) Duncan, footballer and former Calgary alderman, is charged jointly with Frederick C. Foy with defrauding Prosper Oil and Mines Ltd. of $217,000 by pledging company funds as security for loans without lawful authority, and with theft of Prosper securities.

Duncan, 34, is free on $7,500 bail, and Foy, 42, on $2,500 bail, until the Jan. 17 trial.

Innuendo Held Even Worse

VANCOUVER (CP) — Counsel representing George E. P. Jones, former chairman of the B. C. purchasing commission, claimed Wednesday Premier W.A.C. Bennett slandered Mr. Jones by insinuation and innuendo worse than any specific charge.

Tom Berger was presenting arguments in the B.C. Court of Appeal against Premier Bennett's appeal seeking to have a $15,000 slander judgment dismissed.

The premier was ordered to pay Mr. Jones the amount for remarks he made at a Social Credit meeting in Victoria in March, 1965.

The remark followed dismissal of criminal charges against Mr. Jones, who had been accused of accepting benefits from a person doing business with the government.

"The defendant (Premier Bennett) implied Jones was unfit for office and his words carried the implication that the charges were true," Mr. Berger told the appeal court judges.

He disagreed with assertions made by Mr. Bennett's lawyer, George L. Murray. Mr. Murray had contended that Premier Bennett had spoken from a position of qualified privilege and the rules of fair comment applied to the situation.

"Mr. Murray says the premier was making a jocular reference about Mr. Jones and one would almost get the impression that the premier was about to burst into song," said Mr. Berger.

Mr. Jones was suspended from his job when the charges arose but refused to vacate his offices in the Legislative Buildings in Victoria.

When acquitted, he was subsequently retired by special legislation which gave him a full year's salary and full pension rights.

Mr. Berger said the fact that Mr. Jones received pension privileges did not detract from the fact that the legislation was intended to fire the commission chairman.

Mr. Murray had argued that the government decided not to treat Mr. Jones as a dishonest employee and the fact that he got full salary and pension was evidence of this.

Holy St. Bernard!

Cowichan Farmer Suddenly Goes to the Dogs

By JEAN MacGREGOR

COWICHAN BAY — Bonnie, a two-year-old St. Bernard, has had a litter of 10 pups. It is believed to be the first such litter born on Vancouver Island.

Bonnie is owned by Mr. and Mrs. James Poelman, who live on a 100-acre farm next to the Benoh Elementary School on the Old Island Highway, south of Cowichan Bay.

Koko will be two years old in January.

The Poelman's bought Bonnie about a year ago from a woman in Victoria who was moving back to the Northwest Territories, from where Bonnie had originally come.

Mrs. Poelman said "My friends think it's a joke that I'm now in the dog business."

"I wasn't sure if there was a market for St. Bernard dogs on Vancouver Island, but I wanted a new bedroom suite, so I told my husband I would earn the money by selling the pups."

She said only four out of the 10 pups are not yet sold.

Bonnie had 11 pups, but one died at birth. Of the 10 remaining puppies, six are males and four are females.

One of the pups, Queen, who has a distinct white diamond marking on the top of her head, will travel all the way to Inuvik in the Northwest Territories to her new home.

Her owner will be Bonnie's previous owner.

The others will go to Victoria, Nanaimo, Port Renfrew, Cherry Point and Cobble Hill.

One of the males, King, also has a diamond marking on his head.

Another male, Barry, is being sold to a man in Victoria who plans to enter him as a show dog because of his markings.

The remaining pups have been nicknamed by the Poelman as Gump, Bruno, Robert, Walter, Donna, Jetiske and Tina. Although a little worried about the new experience of giving birth, Bonnie showed every consideration to her mistress.

"She had all her pups between 10:30 in the morning and 5:30 that afternoon," said Mrs. Poelman. "After she had the sixth pup, I said to her 'This is enough to look after, Bonnie', but after a short rest, the puppies kept coming."

Mrs. Poelman said St. Bernard dogs usually have between 10 to 14 pups in a litter.

Bonnie's pups were all about the same size at birth, about eight ounces each, and there was no runt in the litter.

Although all the same dark brown color at birth, the pups

A fully-grown male can weigh as much as 200 pounds, but the average is between 150 and 175.

Mrs. Poelman said "A lot of people want to know if a dog of this size and breed eats a great deal. The pups are big eaters until they are about a year old, then they slacken off. Quite often I have to coax Bonnie to eat."

"The most important part of their care is exercise. They need a lot of exercise, and they are never happier than when they have lots of room to run around and play."

St. Bernard dogs are well-known throughout the world for their courage and persistence in rescuing travellers in snow-covered mountainous areas.

However, they have another characteristic, they are very good with children. This trait regret.

has quickly made them a part of the family in any household.

"In a couple of weeks they will be big enough to go to their Christmas."

Students Send Class

NANAIMO — District school children have been shown the results of their fund-raising efforts for Project 100, which raises money for classrooms on wheels.

The effort is the centennial project of school children throughout B.C.

The classroom which Nanaimo school children paid for will be sent to an underdeveloped country in Africa or Asia.

EVEN ZAMBIA

"It could be Tanzania, Guyana, India, Pakistan, Zambia or Hong Kong," a project spokesman said.

The vehicle will contain $5,000 worth of teaching equipment, ranging from science materials to sports equipment.

A budget of $2,000 will be provided by the recipient country for the teachers.

ON DISPLAY

School children were taken through a display vehicle which is currently touring the Island.

At the same time, a constable from the RCMP highway patrol instructed children on proper road manners, safety and rules.

Indians Prepare Ballot

DUNCAN — About 70 Cowichan Indians attended a nomination meeting Wednesday night to elect one chief and 11 councillors.

Thirty-five candidates were nominated and they will be elected Dec. 6 in voting from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the Cowichan Indian Centre.

The elections would normally have not been held until May 1968, but the council resigned en masse about two weeks ago after it was ruled illegal by the Indian Affairs department.

Those nominated for chief are: Dennis Alphonse and Gordon Elliott. Nominated for council are: Wesley Modeste, Raymond Peter, Benjamin George, x-Abel Joe, Abner Thorne, Ruby Peter, George Daniels, William Joe, x-Abram Joe, Mary Thorpe, x-Leonard Peter, Andrew Tom, Rene Louis, Simon Charlie, Elwood Modeste, Edward Elliot Sr., Alphonse Billy, x-Norman Joe, Francis Johnny, Cicerio August, Philomena Antoine, Wallace Antoine, Diane Modeste, Joseph Sylvester, George Modeste, Phillip Joe, Collins Jimmy, Edward Williams, William Thorne, x-Abel Modeste, Robert Thomas, Samuel Wilson, Alec Johnson.

Denis Hearing

Judge Dismisses Mistrial Motion

OTTAWA (CP) — A defense bid for a mistrial was dismissed Wednesday by Judge Bruce Macdonald after 13 days of court hearings into charges against Raymond Denis of attempting to obstruct justice.

Judge Macdonald heard 90 minutes of legal argument on the mistrial motion in the absence of the jury then summoned the 12 men jurors into the courtroom and advised them of the motion and his dismissal. But the trial struck a further blow shortly afterwards when the Crown and the defense notified the court that each side has motions to present to the court.

Neither Crown Attorney John Cassels nor chief defense lawyer Louis Assaly disclosed the nature of their motions while the jury was present.

Denis, former executive assistant to the federal immigration minister, is charged with attempting to obstruct justice by trying to dissuade Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne from opening bail for narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard three years ago.

Lamontagne was lawyer for the United States government, which was seeking at that time to extradite Rivard from Canada for trial in Texas. Rivard's extradition was subsequently approved in Montreal and he was tried and convicted. He now is serving 20 years in prison in Atlanta, Ga.

Lamontagne testified that Denis offered him $20,000 July

24, 1964, at a meeting in the office suite here of the immigration minister not to oppose bail for Rivard.

The mistrial motion by Assaly arose Tuesday during testimony by Joseph McLeod, former RCMP sergeant who was one of two police investigators into Mr. Lamontagne's complaint against Denis.

In a series of questions Mr. McLeod had been asked what his opinion would have been in 1964 if Denis had walked out on the interrogation at RCMP offices.

Assaly contended these questions and replies were improper for the jury to hear and objected to McLeod being asked his opinion of the truthfulness of Lamontagne's statement to the RCMP.

Judge Macdonald told the jury Wednesday that the only opinions that matter in the trial are those of the jurors themselves. They should not be swayed by opinions of lawyers.

ALASKA FERRY MONTH AWAY

Alaska's Governor Walter Hickel, given a U.S. Coast Guard green light for a direct Alaska-Puget Sound ferry run, announced Wednesday that the new service would begin within 30 days.

B.C.'s Highways Minister Gagliardi immediately commented that he doubted if the service would ever materialize.

The coast guard, earlier Wednesday, approved a request by the governor to designate the waters between Ketchikan and Puget Sound as lakes, bays and sounds. Such a designation permits use of the three ferries now scheduled on the southeast Alaska run to extend service to the U.S. northwest, terminating at Seattle or Bellingham.

Elated by the coast guard decision, Mr. Hickel said the state plans to schedule the all-American ferry service "twice a week until the summer season starts."

FURTHER LOOK

"We'll then have to study the whole situation in relation to our long-range plans."

Premier Bennett said the Kelsey Bay-Prince Rupert service will not be resumed until April, once repairs and tests have been completed on the Queen of Prince Rupert, which struck a reef and was badly damaged last summer.

DIRECT SERVICE

Angered by the province's refusal to supply alternative facilities to fill the winter gap, Mr. Hickel applied for direct service right-of-way from the coast guard.

"If Alaska has got so many millions to throw around, perhaps that's what they should do," Mr. Gagliardi said. "But I think the U.S. federal government... might not take the same view."

"What is Alaska after all? It's pretty well military, isn't it? The state of Alaska isn't in the kind of financial shape to do this thing alone over any period of time."

BOTH INTERESTS

Mr. Gagliardi said B.C. was trying to provide a link with Alaska ferries through its North Coast service, for the benefit of both American and Canadian interests.

"We've been providing this service at fantastic cost," he added. "Now we are crippled because we haven't got a suitable ship at this time. But you can be sure our vessel will be travelling again just as soon as this can be done safely."

(Premier Bennett said Wed-

Quebec Dam Feat World First

World first was scored by Hydro-Quebec engineers who Wednesday used available rock to plug entrance of power dam diversion tunnel on Aux Outardes River. About 450 pounds of explosive dropped 22,000-ton plug; top photo, and resulting spray, below, obscured fact that feat was not complete success. However, eventual saving will be $750,000.

Island's Hydro Load Nears Peak

'Brownout' Possible

B.C. Hydro is gearing for the two years before adequate standby capacity was available on Vancouver Island. Attempts to boost the transmission of power by submarine cable from the Lower Mainland have been delayed by failure of transformers to meet specifications.

The Hydro system for the province reached an all-time peak demand of 2,000,000 kilowatts last Monday, said Dr. Shrum. At that time, there was only one spare generating unit in the Vancouver Island system available in case of breakdown.

What's worrying Hydro officials, however, is the fact that peak load usually comes in late December. They figure that if an all-time peak demand was reached by the end of November, it is likely to go still higher in the next month.

The submarine cable which links a transformer station near Ladner with one just north of Duncan alongside the Trans-Canada Highway consists of seven separate lines. Six form two three-phase AC current circuits and the seventh, formerly held in reserve, is being converted to DC.

Big Cities Warm, Generous Too

The joys of giving to the Colonist 500 Fund last year were only topped by the gratitude of some of Victoria's needy families, to whom the fund's cheque meant a truly Merry Christmas.

To one mother of three, it meant her children were able to give each other gifts, and select a special item for themselves.

"They also decorated a corner of the basement they call their clubhouse, and gave a little party for their friends. This is a very important part of Christmas to them."
